SENATE OVERWHELMINGLY KILLS 'COURT PACKING'; MEASURE SHORN OF ALL DRASTIC REFORMS ORDERED

FATAL STEEL RIOT BLAMED ON POLICE IN SENATE REPORT

Committee Accuses Chicago Force of Virtually 'Unprovoked' Attack, Which Left 10 Strikers Dead and Many Hurt.

AUTHORITIES STAND IS HIT BY PROBERS

Evidence Proves Callous Treatment of Wounded, Peaceful Mission of Pickets, Probers Assert.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP)—A strongly worded senate report accused Chicago police today of a virtually "unprovoked" attack on a crowd of strikers last Memorial Day near the Republic Steel Company's plant.

The La Follette civil liberties committee laid before the senate a summary of its investigation, which asserted that "the consequences of the Memorial Day encounter were clearly avoidable by the police."

It noted that 10 strikers were killed and many more wounded by police bullets, "the majority of them in the back."

Chicago Police Hit.
Criticizing Chicago authorities for "setting the seal of their approval upon the conduct of the police," the report said failure "to place responsibility where responsibility properly belongs will invite the repetition of similar incidents."

The report, heavily illustrated with newspaper photographs and cuttings from a sensational film, contained the following conclusions:

1. "That the first shots came from the police; that these were unprovoked, except perhaps by a tree branch thrown by the strikers, and that the second volley of police shots was simultaneous with the missiles thrown by the strikers."

2. "We are of the opinion that the sole objective of the marchers was to picket in mass at the plant gate. . . . We find no evidence of any plan on the part of the union to effect an entrance into the plant."

3. "There is no evidence of physical threats, or of the frenzied disorder which the police describe."

4. "The uncontradicted photographic and oral evidence, corroborated by the admissions of the police themselves, establish that their treatment of the injured was characterized by the most callous indifference to human life and suffering. Not only did the police neglect the wounded, they prevented the union from giving aid."

5. "A number of the police armed themselves with hatchet handles, apparently obtained from the plant, and the whole police detail was sent to the prairie with"

Heavy Damage Caused By Alaskan Tremors

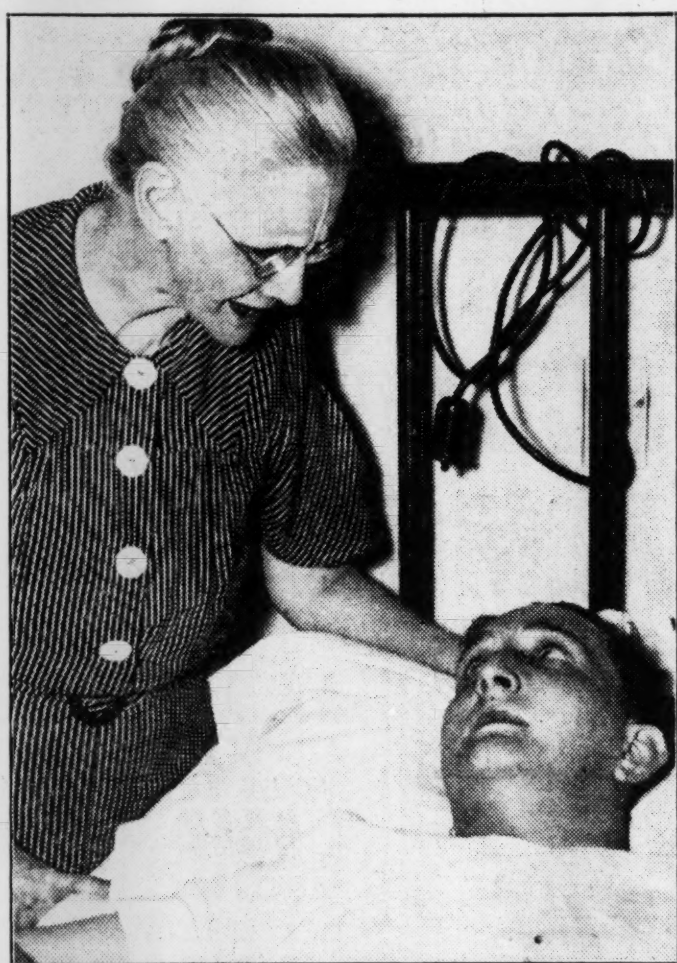

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, July 22.—(UP)—A severe earthquake rocked Fairbanks today, causing thousands of dollars damage. Minor shocks followed the first one, which struck at 7:09 a. m. Alaskan time (12:09 p. m. Atlanta time).

The tremors, not usually felt here because Fairbanks is out of the Alaskan earthquake zone, sent residents running into the streets. Cook inlet, above the Aleutian islands, in the center of a number of live volcanoes, generally is the scene of most earth disturbances in the territory.

The city gradually was returning to normal life from a devastating flood which struck last May when ice jammed in the Tanana and Chena rivers and backed up water five and six feet deep in the streets.

MISSING HEIRESS FEARED KIDNAPED

River Is Dynamited for Pennsylvania Girl, 18; Army Planes Join Hunt

ELKTON, Md., July 22.—(UP)—Heavy dynamite charges in the Northeast river failed to bring to the surface the body of a young Pennsylvania heiress tonight and strengthened suspicions the girl was kidnapped or murdered.

The girl, Janet Louise Wohlens, 18-year-old daughter of a wealthy Lancaster (Pa.) manufacturer, disappeared yesterday after a reported "encounter" with seven men in a mysterious "black-hulled sailing boat" while she was fishing.

Army airplanes, state police, local authorities and Boy Scouts participated in the search for the missing girl. The planes flew over

Doctors Intervene, Rivers Delays Trip

The departure of Governor Rivers for the north Georgia mountains for a few days was delayed yesterday on orders from his physicians. The chief executive had planned to leave Atlanta to be absent a week.

The Governor yesterday completed a series of X-ray examinations, but his doctors instructed him not to leave until today, saying that a further examination might be held necessary.

The chief executive has not announced his destination.

Middlewest Temperature Climbs As Heat Wave Moves Into Section

CHICAGO, July 22.—(AP)—Temperatures climbed over much of the nation today as a new heat wave moved in.

J. R. Lloyd, forecaster at the Chicago station of the weather bureau, reported temperatures generally were above normal and would go higher. He softened the forecast, however, with the explanation there were "fair indications that it will not last long."

He said it would be "really hot tomorrow" in the central plains region—Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota and southern Minnesota—and the lower Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys. It will be hot, he said, on the southern plains.

Thermometer readings of 100 and above were expected in some places, he said, with temperatures in the 90's not uncommon. Many western spots sweltered

SAVANNAH WANTS COUNTY TO SHARE IN RELIEF BURDEN

City Stops Welfare Allowance Until Chatham Is Forced to Put Up an Equal Amount, Mayor Hitch Tells Conference.

FORT SEES PERIL IN STATE ACTION

President of Municipal Group Believes Encroachments Are Being Made on City Revenues.

Mayor Robert M. Hitch, of Savannah, yesterday launched a fight for "a square deal in the matter of welfare activities," and announced a $5,000 monthly allocation for relief has been suspended indefinitely. This came as a feature of the first day's session of the fourth annual convention of the Georgia Municipal Association.

Payments heretofore have been made to the Chatham county board of public welfare approved by the state department in accordance with social security legislation for Georgia.

The Hitch statement came at the closing of the day's business session, and, although executives of other Georgia cities made no announcement of future actions, it was received with open expressions of approval from several in the audience.

Mayor Richard E. Allen Jr., of Augusta, last night said Savannah's predicament is the same in which many of the cities of Georgia find themselves.

"We are being asked to make the same contributions to relief as we always made, although the state is supposed to add substantial sums," Allen asserted. "It appears to us that something may be wrong with the proposed new set-up."

Too Much Spent?
"Either too much is being expended for administration under the new program, or new persons, who ordinarily would not be considered welfare cases, are being added to the rolls."

"We are an equitable plan must be evolved to relieve cities of comparatively large outlays for this purpose. The municipalities of Georgia cannot continue to allocate such sums for relief unless new avenues for revenue are opened."

If we continue as we are now, cities and counties of Georgia will become insolvent, and the state it, answered.

CHINESE TROOPS HALT WITHDRAWAL

Japanese Charged With 'Trickery' as Situation in China Grows Tense.

PEIPING, July 23.—(Friday)—(UP)—Angrily charging they had been "tricked" by Japanese military leaders, troops of the Chinese 37th division abruptly halted withdrawal from the Peiping fighting front today and the North China situation again approached the explosion point.

The Chinese commanders said their troops refused to leave their trenches, fearing Japanese detachments, which failed to withdraw in accordance with the agreement, would attack them from the rear.

It was reported Chinese soldiers who had already started to withdraw rushed back to their positions when word spread through the column that they had been "betrayed."

They immediately began digging in along the Wanpinghsien and Papaoshan areas, where fire fighting occurred Wednesday.

Foreign observers were unable to verify that any considerable number of Chinese or Japanese troops had moved out of the "war zone," except a few from the Chinese 37th division. The Peiping "front" remained virtually unchanged from its position when fighting stopped earlier this week.

A report that Japanese had withdrawn to Fengtai was not verified. Later it was said only about 20 soldiers returned to the Japanese barracks. A Japanese officer at Wulliten, military headquarters in the "war zone," said troops of the Chinese 29th army were still on the west bank of the Yungting river, guarding the Marco Polo bridge.

63 KILLED, 150 SHOT IN REBEL SHELLING OF MADRID AREA

Single Missile Takes 8 Lives and Wounds 20 in City; 400 Bombs Are Hurlled on Quintanar de la Orden in Four Hours.

RED SALIENT HELD UNDER FIERCE FIRE

Both Sides Afraid To Risk Large-Scale Offensive; Concentrate Withering Rain on Goals.

MADRID, July 22.—(AP)—Sixty-three persons were killed and more than 150 wounded in intensive insurgent bombardments of Madrid and two towns today.

The heaviest toll was in Colmenar Viejo, about 15 miles north of Madrid, where an air bombardment killed 50 and wounded about 100. Several houses were wrecked, and some burned.

In Madrid, eight were killed and 20 wounded in the central Cibeles square by a single missile which fell near a street car during a severe shelling.

The insurgents loosed about 400 bombs in their four-hour air attack on the town of Quintanar de la Orden, taking a toll of 40 dead and 32 wounded. The bombing started at 11 o'clock last night and continued until 3 a. m. today.

Terrific Bombardment.
Along the twisting front west of Madrid, Government and insurgent artillery subjected enemy lines to terrific bombardments.

One body of General Francisco Franco's insurgents, after being repulsed in an attack, moved back across the Perales river and began to dig in.

Another assault on government positions east of Guadarama river was repelled.

Both sides turned withering shellfire on small objectives, neither risking a large-scale offensive in the bitterly contested area where the "battle for Madrid" has been in progress for a week. Each evidently was waiting for the other to crack first.

Lines Hold Firm.
There was little change, consequently, in the thumb-shaped salient government troops have jabbed into insurgent territory about 15 miles of Madrid.

The "thumb" points south, its tip at Brunete and its sides at

MCDONALD CHOSEN RATE BOARD HEAD

Blind Member of Com- mission Elected Chair- man Succeeding Wilhoit

WALTER R. McDONALD, of Augusta, blind member of the Georgia Public Service Commission, yesterday was elected chairman of the commission succeeding Chairman Jud P. Wilhoit, who has served for the last four years.

Commissioner Matt L. McWhorter, of Lexington, was elected vice chairman. Chairman McDonald was named without opposition, there being but one member placed in nomination for each of the two posts.

The elevation of Commissioner McDonald to the chairmanship was forecast by The Constitution last fall when Vice Chairman McWhorter and Commissioners James A. Perry and Perry T. Knight were elected to the commission.

Among Ousted Five.
The new chairman was one of the five members of the old commission ousted by Governor Talmadge in 1933. In his place Talmadge appointed J. B. (Tobe) Daniels, of LaGrange, whom McDonald defeated in 1934. Daniels subsequently was appointed state treasurer by Talmadge but when he sought the office from the people he again was defeated, this time by State Treasurer George B. Hamilton.

Although blind since he was 13 years old, the new chairman educated himself as a lawyer and served as a member of the Richmond county delegation in the general assembly from 1917 to 1922. He first was elected to the Public Service Commission in 1922, taking office early in the following year.

Throngs See 75 Boys Speed To Soap Box Semi-Finals

Close Finishes Keep Crowd on Edge; Two Racers Unhurt in Spills.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Screaming sirens of two ace Atlanta motorcycle policemen cleared the track for the opening of the fourth annual Constitution-Chevrolet Motor Company Soap Box Derby on the official runway on Northside drive yesterday.

Seventy-five youngsters came through winners in the opening day elimination heats, qualified for the semi-finals to be run this morning.

Crowd On Edge.
Close finishes and minor accidents kept the unusually large crowd cheering throughout the races. Two of the boys lost control while traveling down the slope and skidded into the curb. They were not hurt but one of the cars was so damaged that it will not be entered today.

In one of the most thrilling finishes of the day, Albert Clarke and Joe Estes finished in a dead heat for second place in the tenth heat. They were trailing the winner, Robert Reagin, by less than two yards. All three will participate in the semi-finals today.

Fred Mason, driving car No. A-53, barely finished ahead of Democrat and one Republican, Vandenberg, of Michigan, voted to sustain.

$3,000,000 in Gold Vanishes; Finder Shoots Himself in Tunnel

PANAMA CITY, July 22.—(UP)—A mystery as bizarre as any in the history of Panama's mountain jungles hid the whereabouts of $3,000,000 in gold treasure whose disappearance was announced simultaneously with an official report that Joanes van Steck, who informed authorities about the discovery, had shot himself.

Reports Enormous.
The first report said Van Steck's self-inflicted wound was fatal, but later word said he was still alive but in a critical condition.

A message to President Juan Demosthenes Arosemena from Police Chief Colonel Manuel Pino, said Van Steck, a Frenchman, shot himself in the head after leading police to the sunken tunnel where he alleged the treasure, consisting

HISTORIC WAR ENDS IN 70-20 VICTORY

New Lower Court Judges Will Be Named on 'a Basis of Need, Not of Age,' Senators Decide.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP)—The senate handed the Roosevelt court bill over to its enemies in the judiciary committee today to be stripped of its furiously-disputed provision for increasing the membership of the supreme court.

For the first time, administration leaders frankly admitted defeat, conceded that their long fight for enactment of a measure changing the makeup of the nation's high tribunal had reached an unsuccessful end.

Under an agreement reached today, the committee is now to reduce the once robust and dispute-awakening measure to a thin

'DON'T KICK F. D. R.; GARNER BESECHES

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP)—Vice President John N. Garner today warned a group of senate Democrats who scuttled the supreme court reorganization bill that President Roosevelt still heads the party and appealed to them not to give the chief executive unnecessary "kicks in the face."

Garner's plea was made at an emergency meeting of the senate judiciary committee.

shadow of its former self, to a few noncontroversial clauses on the lower courts.

On the first roll call vote the senate passed in nearly six months of controversy, the administration leaders voted, with the jubilantly gleeful opponents of the bill, that such procedure be followed.

Vote is 70 to 20.

But, a younger group of Democratic senators, adhering to the demand to the President's plan, declined to follow. Indignantly in some cases, they voted against recommitting the bill. The result of the roll call was 70 for recommitment, 20 against.

With the undisputed death of the supreme court provision and other controverted clauses, a suggestion for a constitutional amendment, of unspecified form, emerged from within the administration, regarded by some as the beginning of a new administration drive.

Secretary Ickes was its backer.

An unusual session of the judiciary committee, attended by leaders of both sides in the controversy, settled the fate of the

The stolen car, property of Tom Elyers, operator of a downtown tavern, was recovered late Monday night after a chase. The thief abandoned the car at the end of Cumberland road and escaped as Officers Mike Jones and Ed Mash-burn fired at him. He was believed shot. Bonner has not been wounded.

YOUNG BRIDEGROOM DECLARED SUICIDE

Coroner Asserts W. G. Starnes Jr. Case Among 'Most Pitiful' He's Heard.

W. G. Starnes Jr., 23, who was found fatally wounded in his apartment at 317 Boulevard Wednesday afternoon, died "as a result of a pistol wound in the head inflicted with suicidal intent," a coroner's jury decided yesterday.

Starnes had been dependent for several days and had told his wife the night before he was contemplating suicide, the jury was told. She reached the hallway of the apartment just in time to hear the fatal shot, police said.

Mrs. Starnes, a bride of just seven months, was at work at Pershing point when told her husband had not reported for work Wednesday. Rushing home, Mrs. Starnes arrived a minute too late to prevent the suicide.

Several letters were left by Starnes. Portions of one were read to the coroner's jury, but the contents were not made public.

Coroner Paul Donahoe commented, "It was one of the most pitiful cases I have ever handled."

Surviving, besides the wife, are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Grover Starnes, of Austell; a grandmother, Mrs. May C. Harber, of Austell. His wife is the daughter of William T. Turner, chief engineer at Fulton tower.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning in the Peachtree chapel of Brandon, Bond & Condon, with the Rev. R. B. Hayes officiating. Burial will be in Austell.

OCONEE REGAINS ITS GANG ESCAPE

Next Getaway Will Be Harder, Deputies Promise.

Oconee county deputy sheriffs again had Roy Lee Dennis, fugitive from their county gang, in custody last night and vowed "he'll find it hard to escape us again."

Dennis, who gave a Cain street address, was arrested here early Monday morning after the car in which he was riding crashed into a telephone pole on Bankhead avenue. He was taken to Grady hospital for treatment, where he was recognized as the escapee by Patrolman R. L. Moseley. Moseley arrested him yesterday on his release from the hospital and notified the Oconee sheriff to come after him.

Dennis was serving a four-year sentence for robbery when he escaped recently.

SEWER CONFERENCE PLANNED FOR TODAY

Definite agreement over participation of Fulton county in Atlanta's metropolitan sewer system will be sought at a conference of city and county officials this afternoon.

Mayor Hartsfield and County Commissioner George F. Longino, chairman of the public works committee, said WPA officials and city and county engineers will attend in an effort to iron out difficulties in reaching an agreement.

Fulton offered to share one-third of the cost of maintaining disposal plants until the Clayton plant is completed and then to assume the full burden of operating it and the North Side sewer lines, but council refused to accept it. The city has insisted on a cash donation as the county's share, the amount approximating $80,000 a year. County residents will not be allowed to tap North Side sewers until an agreement is reached, city officials said.

RESERVE COMMISSIONS GIVEN 19 IN GEORGIA

Reserve commissions in the fourth corps area were accepted recently by 19 men, army headquarters here reported yesterday.

They included:

Medical Reserve—First Lieutenants: Keith E. Garchow, Frank N. H. Harrison, Chas. E. Howear, Meyer M. Schneider and Lewis S. Sims Jr., all of Augusta, and Welcom T. Keeley, of Valdosta.

Dental Reserve—First Lieutenants: Robert H. Fox Jr., Savannah, and Marvin R. Smith Jr., of Milledgeville.

Second Lieutenants in infantry reserve: John A. Blitchington, of Augusta; George E. Plungett Jr., of Conyers, and Henry W. Swift, of Columbus.

Coast Artillery—Second Lieutenants: David G. Anderson, of Athens; Frederick W. Demeritt, of Macon; John B. Napier, of Macon, and Ernest S. Tharpe, of Moultrie.

Cavalry Reserve—Second Lieutenants: Edgar S. Wilson Jr. and James W. Wilson, both of Brunswick; Frank H. McNeal, of Savannah, and Claude W. White, of Augusta.

COMMITTEE CHANGES PLANS FOR BARBECUE

In order to provide a "more spectacular entertainment program" time for the county employees' barbecue August 7 at Lakewood park was altered yesterday by the committee on arrangements to permit serving of the barbecue from 6 o'clock to 8 o'clock Saturday night instead of from 1 o'clock to 6 o'clock p. m.

An hour's fireworks display, followed by a dance, was added to the program, which already includes a floor show put on by vaudeville entertainers. Mike Benton, in a letter to the committee, said that a fireworks display and a 12-piece orchestra could be provided free of charge if the barbecue would be given at night.

RAUSCHENBERG RITES CONDUCTED HERE

Final rites for Mrs. C. A. Rauschenberg, prominent social and religious worker, were held at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning at the Inman Park Methodist church with Dr. Luther Bridgman, Dr. Fred L. Glisson and Dr. Henry B. Mays officiating. Burial was in Oakland cemetery under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Mrs. Rauschenberg died Tuesday morning in a private hospital after an illness of a week. She was 73 years old.

STATE TO OUTLINE WELFARE ACTIVITIES

Demonstration Program Is Approved by U. S. Murdaugh Announces.

Demonstration child welfare service in selected rural areas of the state to promote a general program in Georgia was approved yesterday by the federal government.

Lamar Murdaugh, director of the state welfare department, said the government had provided $46,876.53 for the entire cost of the program that will provide service for neglected, dependent, delinquent and underprivileged children.

Through the demonstration program, he said, the state hopes counties will assume the cost of similar service to broaden the benefits.

The projects and project directors include: Glynn county, Miss Mary Bryan; Dougherty, Miss Catherine Caperton; Emanuel and Bulloch counties, Miss Dorothy Potts; Coweta and Spalding, Miss Frances Mason; Whitfield, Miss Elizabeth Snapp.

Murdaugh said that the state had been divided into six administrative sections, according to congressional districts and directors named for each section.

Directors, headquarters and sections were: Miss Katharine Rowe, Savannah, Districts 1 and 8; Miss Mary Newell, Albany, Districts 2 and 3; Miss Katherine Parsons, Columbus, District 4; Miss Marjorie Bacon, Macon, District 6; Miss Cathryn Sammons, Athens, District 10, and Mrs. Mabel Stephens, Marietta, Districts 7 and 9.

Part of the fund will be used to give special training to welfare workers. These include Miss Sarah Southerland, of Athens; Miss Louise Shaw, of Macon, and Miss Myrdred Flannigan, of Sandersville.

FLOOD, HARBORS BILLS AWAIT SENATE ACTION

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP)—The omnibus flood control and river and harbors bill, authorizing the expenditure of approximately $73,500,000 on projects throughout the country reached the senate today.

The committee approved both measures after making a number of changes in the form in which they passed the house.

THE WHITE LINE is the CLOROX line!

"When it's CLOROX-CLEAN it's disinfected"

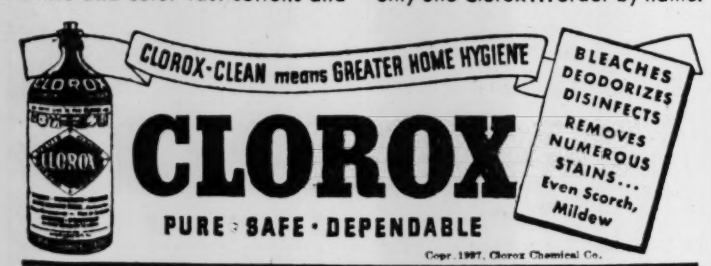

WHEN your white cottons and linens are laundered the Clorox way they're snowy-white, immaculate, sparklingly fresh. Even more than that—they're CLOROX-CLEAN, disinfected, an added safeguard to health.

Soiled handkerchiefs, towels, table and bed linens harbor infection-spreading bacteria. It is vitally important to make these and other white and color-fast cottons and linens Clorox-Clean, especially in homes where there are children. Clorox deodorizes, disinfects and removes numerous stubborn stains—fruit, berry, grass, beverage, blood; many ink, dye, medicine and other stains—even scorch and mildew—from white and color-fast cottons and linens.

Follow the directions on the Clorox label as a guide to easier and safer housekeeping in laundry, kitchen and bathroom. It also lists many important personal uses. Clorox is always uniform in quality... concentrated for economy. There is only one Clorox... order by name.

BARKLEY REVEALS WAY NEARLY CLEAR FOR PAY-HOUR BILL

Court Fight End Breaks Log Jam Obstructing Action in Congress.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP)—A legislative log jam broke up today when the senate ended its prolonged court fight.

Immediately Majority Leader Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, said the Black-Connery wage and hour bill will be given right-of-way as soon as the senate has disposed of a District of Columbia tax bill now before it.

The tax bill is regarded as controversial because of a rider embodying the Tydings price maintenance bill. The Tydings bill would permit manufacturers and wholesalers to fix the retail price of their trade-marked goods in states which have legalized the practice. The Sherman anti-trust act now prohibits price-fixing agreements in interstate commerce.

Although several Republicans and some Democrats have expressed opposition to consideration of wage-hour legislation at this session, Barkley predicted there will be no serious controversy over it in the senate.

Administration leaders said the Wagner housing bill, providing grants and loans to localities for construction of low-rent housing projects, probably will be disposed of after the Black-Connery measure is out of the way.

Well, now it is 1937. The scene is perhaps different in surroundings and style, but not the crowd of young people. They still love to gather for these informal Sunday night suppers, and while the Welsh rarebit is still a popular dish, another newer and just as delicious dish has made its appearance. It is the salad bowl, and as before, the young man of 1937 holds sway in the preparation of this increasingly popular dish.

The salad bowl itself—cool, colorful, crisp. A variation of colors and ingredients—never the same—yet always a prime favorite with everyone. And so simple to prepare that even children are beginning to be interested in the art of cookery and want to have a hand in mixing the salad. It is well to stimulate their interest in cooking when the first signs of wanting to "know how" appear, and to begin with a simple salad is one of the very first lessons. Let father, sons and the daughters of your family enjoy the fun of making a salad.

Following are some "whole-meal" salads.

How to Begin.

Line the deep, smooth bottom of your bowl with salad greenery and fill to overflowing with your favorite whole-meal salad mixtures (the hearty, satisfying ones), the ingredients for which you will nearly always have ready and waiting in the ice box or on the pantry shelf—cold meats such as chicken, tongue, ham and veal, or seafood such as shrimp, tuna, lobster, salmon, herring, etc. Marinate with the appropriate salad dressing, blend and garnish with such tidbits as are always handy—pickles, olives, celery, chives, capers, peppers, tomatoes, nuts, parsley, hard cooked eggs. You know the rest. Make use of your

The gay nineties! What memories that expression brings back—one can almost see a happy young crowd gathered together on a Sunday evening for the inevitable Welsh rarebit—always the Sunday supper treat. And, yes, you are right—it is not the young lady who is doing the honors in preparing this delicious concoction. It is the young bachelor, the man-about-town, who knows the secret of the ever-popular dish, and straightway makes haste to prepare the rarebit amid the sighs of increasing hunger from his admiring friends.

Crowd Unchanged.

Ham or mixed cold cuts with cheese, onion, pickles, French dressing.

Shrimp with cucumber and mayonnaise.

Lobster with onion, celery, capers, pickles, hard-cooked eggs, French dressing.

Sweetbreads with cucumber, mushrooms, celery, hard-cooked eggs, nuts, apples, olives, mayonnaise.

When you have exhausted these and other salad combinations, an interesting and delicious mixture for your bowl is herring salad. Soak 3 Milder herring in water overnight. Skin and remove bones and milt. Rub milt through a sieve with 1-2 cup vinegar or dry red wine if you have it. Add 1-2 cup sugar, some minced parsley, and 1 tablespoon horseradish. Cube and mix together the herring, 3-4 cup cooked veal, 1 or 2 hard-cooked eggs, 1-4 cup boiled potatoes, 3-4 cup pickled beets, 1-4 cup onions, 1-4 cup cucumber pickles, 1 large stalk celery, 1 cup apples and 1-2 cup blanched and shredded almonds. Pour milt dressing over this mixture and blend thoroughly. Place in bowl on lettuce and garnish with eggs, olives, pickles and parsley. Serves eight.

SAVANNAH WANTS COUNTIES TO HELP

self will become involved in serious financial difficulties." The Hitch announcement followed an address by James A. Fort, president of the organization, who voiced the opinion that "the state for years has encroached upon the sources of revenues available to municipalities."

"A Definite Demand."

Mayor Hitch informed the association that Savannah has paid $5,000 a month to the welfare board in charge of social security administration, while Chatham county has paid $800 a month. "Savannah is definitely demanding and is expecting a square deal in this matter and until we are assured of that, we will refuse to appropriate any further sums to the board," he added.

When asked if the board had yet notified him that it would refuse to care for Savannah's relief load, he replied:

"Not yet. As soon as we took our action, I left town to come here."

He added, however, that the $5,000 which Savannah has paid previously and the $800 the county has paid was regarded as sufficient to care for the relief problem in Chatham.

This specific objection was that, although Savannah is expected to continue the $5,000 monthly payments, the board planned to provide for only about 60 per cent of the relief needed.

James A. Fort, association president, and Mayors Herbert I. Smart, of Macon, and Richard E. Allen Jr., of Augusta, also warned that extraordinary appropriations to match federal activities "will wreck municipalities and the state."

Harris Asks Unity.

Roy V. Harris, of the Georgia house of representatives, last night called for co-operation between city, county and state governments in the interest of the people of Georgia, and the progress and prosperity of the state.

He was the principal speaker at the annual dinner and floor show over which Mayor Hitch presided as toastmaster.

"We have been prone to destroy rather than build," he said. "We haven't had a sufficient amount of confidence in ourselves, in our leaders, in our state or in our people."

"Legislators and municipal officials can render Georgia no greater service at this time than to use every possible effort to sell Georgia people to themselves, to sell them their own state and communities and to inspire in them attitudes of confidence in their selected officials."

He added that in 15 years of public life he has known but very few public officials whom he thought were corrupt.

Adding that the legislature, counties and cities have a common responsibility and duty, he exhorted them to a co-operation "in order that we may achieve the greatest possible degree of progress and prosperity for our people."

Asks New Tax System.

Pointing out that the per capita income of Georgians in 1936 was $233 as compared to $224 national average, he said the legislature should enact the following to overcome this economic handicap:

(1) The writing of a fair and equitable tax system in Georgia so that industry and business in Georgia will not be laboring under handicaps as compared with industry and business in other states.

(2) The development of a more progressive and more effective educational system in this state.

(3) The elimination of discriminatory freight rates by taking our section out of unofficial or illegitimate territory by development of our own natural resources by our own people and by encouragement of business and industry in Georgia, "because it is only through business and industry that we live and have our being and the very lifeblood of our people is fed by the profits of business and industry."

Mayor Hitch invited the 1938 convention of the association to meet in Savannah and said he will renew his invitation at business sessions today.

Mrs. E. D. Rivers represented Governor Rivers, who is ill and could not attend the dinner last night. Mayor Pro Tem. I. Gloer Hailey represented Mayor Hartsfield, of Atlanta, who also was ill.

Mrs. Mildred Shelton Brooke, Red Cross official, was an honor guest as was Downing Musgrove, Governor Rivers' executive secretary.

Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company, was host to delegates at a luncheon yesterday.

Judge Yeomans Heard.

Attorney General M. J. Yeomans told the convention "experience has demonstrated the necessity of more power and responsibility in the executive head of our municipal institutions."

He was a speaker at the morning session. He added that experience has demonstrated the soundness of the principle of local self-government as practiced in our municipalities under our corporate charters.

"The Georgia Municipal Association is working along the right lines," he asserted. "Its aims and purposes are to promote better citizenship, and promote a definite, beneficial legislative program."

The Yeoman's address contained a history of the development of municipal government in Georgia and at the conclusion of his speech a motion to submit a copy to every newspaper in Georgia and to every member of the association was passed unanimously.

Reports of E. J. Bass, of East Point, treasurer, and Zach Arnold, executive secretary and mayor of Fort Gaines, showed the association in fine condition.

Municipal problems were thrashed out in a round-table discussion during the afternoon with Mayor George Carpenter, of Milledgeville, presiding. Mayor Allen, of Augusta, and City Attorney Omar Franklin, of Valdosta, led the studies.

Sanitation, police and fire protection, schools, taxation, development of aviation fields and kindred problems were included.

Mayor William B. Hartsfield, of Atlanta, extended the official welcome to executives of other Georgia municipalities as the two-day convention opened during the morning at the Ansley hotel.

"Municipalities of the state contain more than 55 per cent of the population of the state, own more than 75 per cent of the wealth, perform nearly 75 per cent of the services of government, and it is only fair that they receive some consideration in legislation enacted by the state assembly," he said.

Committees Are Named.

The following committees were named during the afternoon: Resolutions—R. J. Jones, Dawson, chairman; O. W. Franklin, Valdosta, and Herbert I. Smart, Macon.

Nominations—H. T. Flannigan, Winder, chairman; A. M. Anderson, Perry, and J. D. Ashley, Valdosta.

Highway—Robert M. Hitch, Savannah, chairman; Dr. Thomas R. Luck, Carrollton; R. R. Marlin, Dawson; John Underwood, Mount Vernon, and E. M. Smith, McDonough.

The highway group will contact members of the State Highway Board today, according to schedule, to attempt to clarify matters pertaining to state maintenance of state highways within limits of cities of the state.

The association voted to establish a special taxation committee to act with the State Tax Commission in working out a new taxing program for the state.

Georgia has the distinction of having the first commission form of government in the United States, according to Alf Traylor, of Hepzibah, Ga., Richmond county, who claimed the honor for his city. The commission government was set up by act of the Georgia legislature in 1870.

C. Q. Wright, city manager of Albany, will preside at a continuation of round-table study of municipal problems this morning. M. A. Hornsby, Atlanta police chief, will speak on "Better Trained Police," and Harry Phillips, director of the Georgia Fire College, will speak on "Better Trained Firemen."

There will be an open discussion of a projected legislative program to be adopted by the association.

E. M. Smith, mayor McDonough, will preside at the business session beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Committees will report, resolutions will be submitted and officers will be elected as features of the closing meeting.

Other leaders attending the convention include: Luther C. Wilson, Columbus;

Manhattan Democrats Uphold Dooling; Senator To Enter Mayoralty Race.

NEW YORK, July 22.—(AP)—Tammany, stronghold of Manhattan's Democrats, upheld its leader, James J. Dooling, tonight and voted Senator Royal S. Copeland, Democrat, New York, as Tammany's candidate in the forthcoming Democratic primary for mayor.

The district chiefs balloted 15 11-12 for Senator Copeland, and 8 5-12 for Grover Whalen, who had been designated by the Democratic leaders of four other New York city boroughs, as their candidate to oppose the incumbent mayor, F. H. LaGuardia, fusion candidate.

The test of Dooling's leadership, several times threatened in recent months, came in a meeting of the executive committee.

A week ago, Dooling said that Senator Copeland was Tammany's candidate. The Democratic leaders of Kings and Queens counties, of the Bronx and of Richmond county, declined to follow Dooling and selected Whalen, former police commissioner and now president of the New York World's Fair Corporation, to carry a New Deal banner in the campaign.

Whalen immediately said he would run but added that he thought the campaign should be fought on local issues without reference to the New Deal or other national affairs.

Hammond heard District Attorney David H. Keedy outline the state's case, charging the retired educator was the man who threatened Stephen Alan Norton, former cashier of Mount Hermon school, with a gun on May 25.

Defense Attorney Charles Fairhurst, a former district attorney, said Elmer "definitely" would take the stand.

LUCKY the man who's found a bride so lovely, and so clever, too! "If you ask me," says charming Mrs. Chickering, "a girl doesn't have to be very clever to know it's important to have soft, smooth skin. I've got the easiest care in the world for mine—Camay!"

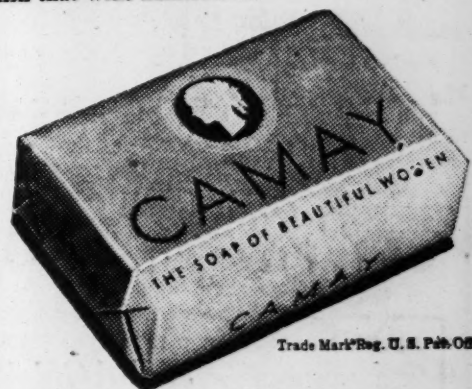

It would be a shame not to set off those clear, blue eyes and that mischievous mouth with a really lovely complexion! It's a shame for any girl not to keep skin clear and smooth. For it's easy with Camay!

There are so many reasons why. No soap has the same rich, velvety lather Camay has. Its fragrant beauty bubbles go down deep to remove every speck of grime and dirt. Camay's lather is thorough—makes your skin feel fresh, alive, because it's really clean.

No other leading beauty soap is gentler than Camay. Time after time, in tests against well-known beauty soaps, on every type of skin, the results were the same. Camay came out definitely, provably milder. Even delicate skin keeps lovely with Camay!

No beauty soap that you can buy is better than Camay. And yet you'll find this fragrant, mild complexion soap is very inexpensively priced. Why not begin today to use Camay regularly? Soon you can have the kind of skin that wins admiration!

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 23, 1937.

BEYOND WESTERN UNDERSTANDING

The net result of the changing situation in the Sino-Japanese war crisis at Peiping, in so far as American understanding is concerned, is a confirmation of the ancient axiom that the ways of Oriental diplomacy are beyond Occidental comprehension.

As the armed forces of China and Japan first agree to terms of peace, then meet in bloody battle and again call the whole thing off, repeating the program day after day, the only analogy in American experience is to be found in that railroad foreman who, after clearing up the right-of-way after a wreck, reported "Off again, on again, gone again."

It is entirely within the realms of Oriental possibility that the Peiping situation is a premeditated plan for the achievement of some agreed-upon objective not yet made evident. Or it may, just as logically, be exactly what it seems on the surface, two belligerent rivals hesitating between desire for a fight and the wiser course of peace.

The Chinese National government at Nanking has, of recent months, made large strides toward welding the empire into a cohesive whole. It is the first time in modern history that there have been hopes of the awakening of a united nationalistic spirit in that vast country.

It is conceivable that the Nanking government, overly optimistic about its progress, may be toying with the idea that it is now strong enough to face battle boldly with its ancient enemy, Japan, and force correction of those ranking wrongs involved in the seizure of Manchoukuo and other Tokyo militaristic invasions of China.

On the other hand, the Peiping outbreak may be nothing but a local recurrence of that feudalistic system which has partitioned China into sectional allegiance to various war lords. General Jung, who, only two years ago, was reported to be practically an ally of Japan—for an understood good reason—may have changed his allegiance. Or he may be filling the role of a mere cat's-paw, used to "save the face" of the Nanking government after that authority realized at the last moment it was not ready for a challenge to war against Tokyo.

The western mind, in any event, is helpless before the wily subtleties of Oriental diplomatic thinking, and about all the world can do is watch the kaleidoscopic shifting of the drama from the sidelines and hope a general conflagration will not come, or, if it does eventuate, that it may be confined to the east alone and not ignite the flames of war throughout the world.

ATLANTA, SETTER OF STYLES

The week beginning August 9 will witness the third annual fall exhibition of Atlanta merchandise. Thousands of merchants from all parts of the southeast will then be the guests of the city. They will examine the offerings of Atlanta's manufacturers and wholesalers and will place their orders for fall stocks.

There will be an elaborate "style show," as part of the entertainment of the week, when mannequins will parade before an audience of southeastern merchants and their friends, displaying the creations in women's articles of adornment that were born in the salons of Atlanta's dress, millinery, shoe and costume designers.

Atlanta each year assumes a place of greater importance as a manufacturing and mercantile center of the southeast. The city by its easy proximity to the entire section, by its magnificent shipping facilities and by its understanding of the needs of southern trade, is rapidly developing into the wholesale center of the South Atlantic states.

The Atlanta Manufacturers and Distributors Association, working in conjunction with the trade extension division of the Chamber of Commerce has conducted semi-annual style and market weeks for visiting merchants. Each of these events, which began three years ago, has surpassed all previous like occasions in enjoyment and in business advantage.

The promoters of these market weeks are contributing much to the growth and progress of the city and, in their efforts to enhance the attractiveness of Atlanta as a marketing center for southeastern merchants, should have the fullest possible co-operation of every group and of each individual interested in the future of the city.

THE NEW MAJORITY LEADER

The election of Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, as successor to the late Senator Joe Robinson as leader of the Democratic majority in the upper house of congress elevates a man whose service to his party and to the nation well deserves the honor now his.

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, who lost the leadership election by a margin of one vote, set an example for the Democrats of the nation in the warmth of his congratulations to his successful rival, accepting his defeat in the manner of a loyal party man and a thoroughly good sportsman.

The Mississippian had full right to seek the post. By right of seniority and by right of service to the party, he was a logical leader.

But Barkley, of Kentucky, while his service does not number the years of Harrison, has, too, been a valued warhorse of the Democrats. He is finely equipped for the task to which he has been named.

And Senator Harrison, recognizing that fact, leads the way to that restored harmony in senate Democratic ranks which will be the heartfelt prayer of every Democrat when once the issue which has come close to splitting the party is decided and relegated to history.

HITLER AS ART CRITIC

Adolph Hitler, Chancellor of Germany, has added another world to the many in which he enjoys spreading his dicta. This time it is art.

At the dedication of the House of German Art at Munich, where, it is reported, there are 850 works of German painters and sculptors, created since 1933, Der Fuehrer stated that all works of art must be destroyed which are not "immediately comprehensible to the average German."

While it may be conceded that the world as a whole will find little objection to such a judgment applied to the fantasies of surrealism, yet it seems to be going a little too far to make the understanding of the average German the criterion of excellence for the entire art world. The continuance in dictatorial power of Herr Hitler himself, for instance, hardly redounds to the credit of average German understanding.

At the same time, the Chancellor let loose a stream of invective against "gossips," "cliques" and "Bolshevik art collectors" and hinted direly of "purgings" and "suppressions" which promise little freedom of expression for the artist in a Hitlerized Deutschland.

But such bombastic infallibility in all subjects is typical of Hitler. For he has not said, "I was always determined, if fate ever gave us power, not to discuss these matters with anyone, but to make decisions. Understanding of so great affairs is not given to everyone."

The all-seeing, the ever-wise has spoken. Selah.

JUST A LITTLE GUDGEON

There was consternation, a few days ago, in the Department of Justice building at Washington. The air-cooling system failed to function.

The situation was desperate. Justice, of all functions, must be cool and temperate. By its various nature, heated justice becomes justice no longer, but injustice.

So they called in all the delvers after precedent of the legal staff and all the seekers after cause of the FBI. To no avail. The system remained obdurate.

Then along came a plain citizen in overalls, with a monkey wrench and nonchalance, and, in short order, discovered the source of trouble. It was a small fish, a little gudgeon from the tidal basin, that had gotten into the machinery and gummed up the works.

After all, the department should not feel too resentful about the thoughtful fish. He was probably intent only on bringing some new scales to justice.

With Hollywood filming his dramas, Barrymore "streamlining" them and Roosevelt quoting them, it's funny Shakespeare doesn't come over and clean up on lectures.

In Broadway's cleaned-up version of burlesque, ex-strippers appear fully garbed, as the audience reaction is 30 degrees cooler than the street.

Editorial of the Day

FURY ALL AT THE TOP?

(From the New Orleans Times Picayune.)

Despite the furious exchanges between government spokesmen and newspapers of major European countries, an American correspondent reports the peoples themselves the reverse of "war-minded." The constant incitations to fury and hatred leaves "the common citizen of Europe" cold.

Instead of reacting violently when his official newspapers spout hate in their headlines, the average German, by the evidence from Berlin, "shrugs his shoulders . . . The average Frenchman also discounts the war threats and scares. In England every recent parliamentary by-election has resulted in the return of a Conservative, indicating the peaceful disposition of the British voters. "Perhaps," suggests the overseas observer, this attitude of the masses "helps to explain why the nations of Europe have not leaped at one another's throats long ago."

Our guess, however, is that the subjects of the European dictators have been too thoroughly regimented and drilled to obedience to resist, even openly to question, the orders of their respective dictators. Driven into another conflict, they would fight and die and sacrifice as did the World War generations—but not for so long.

From any new world conflict's start there would be, we suspect, a greater tendency toward fraternization with the common citizens in the opposite trenches, a smouldering and bitter resentment in and behind the fighting lines against the war lords. Defeat or military disaster would create, we suspect, instant and very grave danger of armed mutiny and popular insurrection against the dictator on the losing side. If one were overthrown, the fall of the others could not be long postponed. Not the fear that the "cannon fodder" would not submit to sacrifice—but rather the dread that a terrible price would be later exacted from the dictator who ordered the sacrifice, may be holding back from war declarations those saber-rattling European rulers who speak the "language of the cannon" on nearly all occasions.

By H. R. BAUKHAGE.

GARNER'S VIEWS WASHINGTON, July 22.—When Vice President Garner took off his coat and went to work at his repair job on the administration's senatorial machinery, he made it plain that he wasn't signing up for an all-summer job.

The first thing he did was to state his views privately to the effect that, if he had his way, he'd close up shop and let everybody go home and tell the folks how prosperous they had become under the New Deal.

He agreed, however, after an intimate conference with administration leaders, to attempt one chore first, a chore, by the way, which will not have to be done now.

It was to try to push through a plan which he had suggested and which the administration liked anyway, according to those who are in a position to speak with assurance on the administration's preferences. But, for a very delicate reason, it had not been feasible to insist on this particular proposal while Senator Robinson was alive.

The plan, it can be authoritatively stated, was a bill the vice president felt might be jammed through the senate with immediate adjournment thereafter (at least in recess) as the price.

It would have created an eleven-man court, an associate justice for each of the ten judicial circuits, with the chief justice over all.

A constitutional amendment would then be offered setting the retirement age of the justices at seventy.

A MATTER OF GEOGRAPHY

This is the point that worried Mr. Robinson's friends: It was considered probable that an effort would be made to provide that all appointments to the supreme bench thereafter be regional. The candidate would have to come from the geographical area within the circuit made vacant. That would have eliminated Senator Robinson. Associate Justice Butler presides over the eighth circuit, which includes not only his native state of Minnesota but Arkansas as well.

STURGEON'S FISH BONE

State Department Representative Leo Sturgeon, now in Alaska with the bureau of fisheries expedition, is about ready to pick a bone with the Japanese. A fish bone.

Mr. Sturgeon has just made a flight over Japanese fishing boats licensed for crabbing in Alaskan waters. The report of what he saw hasn't reached Washington, but if it supports the evidence taken by some of his co-workers in a previous flight, it may force the Japanese to switch from their salmon diet and take to eating some of their official statements.

Alaskans have contended for a long time that Japanese were by way of ruining their salmon industry. The navy was interested in reports that the Japanese "fishermen" were doing some surveying in American waters.

The state department asked Tokyo about the salmon as long as three years ago, and Tokyo said it couldn't be any salmon fishing because no salmon fishing licenses had been issued.

The Alaskan persisted, said there ought to be a law. Two were drawn up which would keep Japanese salmon fishers out of most of the Bering sea. But the court fight has held up action on them; and, besides, the state department wanted to await Mr. Sturgeon's reports.

Meanwhile, the department is getting some interesting information from other sources. Since Americans have consistently been refused permission to board Japanese boats in Alaskan waters, five "men of integrity" decided to take to the air. What they saw in a half hour's survey of the Japanese boats, and the pictures they are sending to Washington, may be the basis for a job for the diplomats as well as legislators.

It was estimated by the fliers that some 20,000 salmon were piled on the decks of four Japanese ships.

Then came an even more disturbing message. An official not connected with the bureau of fisheries expedition reports passing twenty-six "fishing boats," the floating cannery type as well as large trawlers 100 feet long such as are used in the North sea and the type which was used as mine-layers during the World War. Other trawlers were spreading a mile-wide trawl which scoops the ocean floor not only of fish but of fish-food as well.

FROM WHEELER'S PAST

There is a hint which he who runs may read in the records of the Congressional Library.

By noon of the day the Robinson funeral train returned from Little Rock and the conciliators were busy at their job on the court bill, 32 calls for a certain book had been made.

The tome contained the platform on which Senator Wheeler (leader of the opponents) ran for vice president in the presidential campaign of the elder La Follette.

One plank provided for an amendment to the constitution which would give congress similar powers over a supreme court decision which it has over a presidential veto.

Who Has Finest Memorial?

The world has ever had the habit of providing great tokens of memory to her great men. Mountains and rivers and lands and oceans have been named after famous characters of history.

Sculptors and architects have expressed their finest genius in monuments and edifices to perpetuate some great fame.

Who, of all the thus remembered great, would you say has been granted the most magnificent memorial of all?

My vote goes to Sequoyah, the chief of the Cherokee Indians who once inhabited this north Georgia. Sequoyah, you know, invented the Cherokee alphabet.

Analysis Is Made of Senate Leadership Vote

By HUGH S. JOHNSON.

Democratic Leadership

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 22.—The Democratic caucus which elected Alben Barkley majority leader of the senate, came in circumstances of such political heat that the choice was generally regarded as a crisis and the beginning of an epoch.

It was nothing of the kind. The vote—38 to 37—clearly measures the toss-up in merit as between these two men—Barkley and Harrison. Both are of the very cream of the senate—honest, able, conscientious—senators of the best tradition of that highly important body. Either would be a first-class leader. I can't imagine a worse headache than having to choose between them.

To the extent that it was given the aspect of a proof of executive domination of the senate majority, it argues nothing for presidential dictatorship. There is precious little czarism in a majority of one.

In so far as it was given the appearance of a test of strength for the "third New Deal" in the senate as a whole, it must have been a disappointment to the extremists—the Republicans weren't voting.

It seems good from every angle—the final neutral attitude of the White House, the absence of gag or bulldozing tactics in permitting Senator Barkley to vote by proxy, the secret ballot, the closeness of the result and at last "making it unanimous." It ought to go a long way toward closing up the shattered liberal ranks and joining the President and the senate in an advance from the point onward in the traditional forms and methods of Democratic government.

Barkley's Senator Barkley told friends at the very beginning of this fight that he did not want any "administration pressure"—that he wanted the majority leadership, but only if the Democratic senators wanted him. He is fairly entitled to conclude that that is exactly how he was chosen. There were two suggestive White House moves at the beginning, but how can it be argued that they affected the result since the balloting was in secret?

Later developments may change this appraisal but, from information as it stands at this writing, the whole procedure seems fair, sportsmanlike, democratic and wholly promising.

All recent developments are of more far-reaching significance than their mere surface appearance. Those administration advisers who, since the first of the year, have spurred for a hell-for-leather herding of their own legislative creations through the capitol, with little regard for congressional deliberation, stand proved to have been calamitous counselors.

Split Close

It is clearer daily that their advance strategy, instead of advancing the President's objectives, has temporarily stymied them. To the extent that the vote was a test of Democratic senatorial sentiment toward this gentry, if it proved anything, it proved only that they have split the party very close to the 50-50 line. Perhaps they were entitled to their day. If they were, they have had it. They should now move promptly, but without crowding, to the nearest exits.

That leaves the frequently repeated suggestion that the President stands with his leadership impaired and his objectives denied. This is a lot of hot air. He has lost little of popular support. With few exceptions even those in congress who opposed recently proposed methods most staunchly, support his objectives just as staunchly. He retains their affection and their loyalty. Instead of being farther away from him, the way seems open to work much more closely for and with him.

His best friends have not been the chorus of yes-sirens who yodled his objectives on this summer. If these non-elected interlopers go the way now so plainly pointed out to them, he reunited with his large and loyal congressional majority, can move straight to his objectives and forget the last six months.

Jesse James.

On June 3, 1871, Jesse James made outlaw history. He rode into Corydon, Iowa, with his gang to rob the county treasurer of the collections. To get the lay of the land, he walked into the treasurer's office with a $100 bill and asked for change.

"Haven't got it," he was told. "Why don't you try the Obocock bank. It just opened today."

Jesse did try it. The bank's opening day was its closing day, for half an hour later Jesse and his gang were riding away with the bank's $15,000 and a few odd cents taken from a colored preacher.

"Please start another bank," was the bandit's parting request.

To Make Willie Useful, You Merely Harness His Desire to Prove His Muscle

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

The easiest way to accomplish anything is to co-operate with nature. The natural way is the way ordained by the all-wise Creator of the universe.

And the ordained way is a pleasant way. It is necessary to remember that if you would influence your fellow men.

Men are by nature selfish. For good or ill—whether created from dust in the twinkling of an eye or created from dust by the slow process of evolution—they are creatures of free will.

And the all-wise Creator knew that a creature possessed of free will would not do anything a second time unless the first experience afforded him pleasure or profit.

Thus it happens that the things man should do for his own good or the good of the race are things he desires to do.

Desire is the one supreme motive that overcomes all others. It is the mainspring of man's existence.

And whether he is making love or discovering a continent or sacrificing himself for the good of others, it is desire that prompts him. He does the thing that gratifies him—the thing that affords him pleasure by ministering to his senses, his appetites, his vanity or his self-respect.

Even when he makes sacrifices for those he loves, he does the thing he most desires to do. His very selfishness is selfish.

It should be obvious, then, that the one sure way to influence a boy is to take advantage of his inborn inclination to do the thing that affords him a profit.

You may influence him by means of fear, but some day desire will overcome fear. You may influence him by means of a sense of duty, but desire will overcome that, also, for desire is inherent and a sense of duty is something acquired.

If you would make him clean and courageous and honorable, you must find a way to make cleanliness, courage and honor seem desirable to him.

By logic or example you must prove these qualities so profitable to him that he will desire them to gratify his pride.

If you can't do that, all your precepts and preachments are so much empty air.

To say that a boy has been "given the right training," when he hasn't been taught to desire the things that are right, is neither true nor sensible. It is bosh.

WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Palestine Divided.

PARIS—It has been decided by the Royal Commission of Inquiry which investigated the troubled condition of Palestine, that the best thing for the country is a separation of the Jewish and Arabic populations into two separate states. This is the commission's recommendation, which will most likely be carried out by the British government. Of course, Britain cannot change the status of Palestine without consulting the League of Nations and the American government, but no serious objection is likely to arise in these quarters.

And so Palestine is to be divided. For 20 years the British have been trying to bring it about and at last they are succeeding. They egged on the Arabs to revolt, actually fomented trouble between Arabs and Jews, and now are able to tell the world that two semitic peoples cannot get along and must be separated. The whole thing is one of the most striking instances of that principle of "divide and rule," by which imperial Rome kept in the saddle for six hundred years and Albin now for well-nigh four hundred years.

It is not clear yet whether the Jewish people shall at least have territorial autonomy in that part of Palestine which is to be set aside as a Jewish state. That part includes: all of Galilee, except the city of Nazareth, which comes under direct British rule, as a holy place; furthermore, the coastal region, the huge valley of Esdraelon or Jezreel, and finally the Beisan valley.

Holy Land Restoration.

A conservative estimate would hold that there is room in these sections for a million and a half Jews. Therefore, the next 10 years will see an unprecedented development in Palestine. At last some of the oppressed and down-trodden Jews in Eastern Europe will have an opportunity to exchange the striking hell of the Ghetto for the sunshine and life of the Holy Land.

Vast sums of money will be necessary to effect this mass transfer of population which is comparable only in modern times to the exodus of the Greeks from Asia Minor, which was carried out successfully by the League of Nations, under the direction of Dr. Fridtjof Nansen.

The Zionists alone cannot shoulder this burden. All Jews, in fact, all men of good will, should be willing to share in this great humanitarian task. We Christians included, for Jewish love in this world is a blot on our Christian name and an affront to the way principles of brotherly love which we pretend to hold sacred.

For years and years the American Joint Distribution Committee has poured out millions and millions of dollars toward Jewish relief in Eastern Europe. It has been like dropping coins down into a bottomless vat. For even those millions did not bring about any appreciable difference in the condition of the Jews.

GEORGE ADVOCATES CHEAP LAND RATES IN SENATE SPEECH

Southern Farmer Cannot Survive Without Low Interest, Says Senator.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS. WASHINGTON, July 22.—Joining forces with members from other agricultural states, who voted overwhelmingly to override the President's veto of a bill recently passed by congress to extend a 3 1/2 per cent interest rate to Federal Land Bank notes, Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, in a vigorous speech on the floor of the senate today, declared that the average farm in the south could not survive without the cheap interest rate proposed.

When the measure was before the senate some days ago, Senator George favored a reduction in the interest rate to 3 per cent on the fixed indebtedness against American farmers.

Both he and his colleague, Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., voted for the original bill and to override Mr. Roosevelt's veto.

Wants Cheaper Rate. "Even now," Senator George said, "I am ready to vote for any measure that will give us a rate not exceeding 3 per cent. Through the Federal Land Bank system and the commissioner's loans, approximately 37 1/2 per cent of the farm mortgages of the country are now carried. In other words, the Federal Land Bank and the land commissioner have absorbed almost 37 1/2 per cent of the outstanding mortgages upon all American farms. The greatest relief that can be given to the American farmer is to give him a rate of interest which his business can sustain."

Many Farm Tenants. "What I am undertaking to say," the Georgian declared after interruptions from various other senators, "is that, taken on the average, the farms in the south will not and cannot sustain an interest rate on farm mortgages of more than 3 per cent, and that accounts for the fact that we have a great many farm tenants in the south. Not all of these have been tenants throughout their lives or from choice. Many of them formerly were home owners. Many of them have been foreclosed out of their homes; and the carrying charge upon the fixed indebtedness against the farm in the form of a farm mortgage has been one of the primary causes of farm tenancy in the south. It not only prevented the thrifty and industrious young man who desired to own a farm from becoming a purchaser of a farm, but, during the past few years it actually foreclosed out of farm homes thousands and even hundreds of thousands of farmer landowners who could not pay the excessive interest charges."

Says Question Irrelevant. In reply to a question by Senator King, of Utah, as to whether farmers borrowing from private banks and loan agencies were not forced to pay 5 to 7 per cent for their loans, Senator George said he did not see the relevancy of the question, nor of the fact that they did pay these amounts. "The fact is," Mr. George emphasized, "that the average farm will not bear and cannot pay an interest rate of 6 or 7 or 8 or 10 per cent, and that is why so many American farmers have become impoverished. I repeat, if we want to give real farm relief, let us reduce this interest rate to not exceeding 3 per cent."

2 ARE HELD IN PROBE OF DUAL FIRE DEATHS

HINESVILLE, Ga., July 22.—(AP) Two young men, whose names have not been revealed, are being held in the Liberty county jail for investigation in connection with the burning of a filling station near Eulonia, several months ago, in which two people, a man and a woman, were burned to death. Although authorities at Hinesville refuse to reveal the exact charges against the two men, the sheriff of McIntosh county stated he thought they were being held in connection with the burning of the station.

Oh, Oh, Copper's in Trouble With the Cops

"Copper," the German police dog, yesterday met Officer M. L. Thomas under rather trying circumstances. He got a ticket for violating the anti-noise ordinance by blowing his mistress's car horn too loud in traffic. It was quite a blow to the dog's pride—learning he couldn't "quash" the ticket—he has learned to do practically everything else. "Copper" is owned by Miss Mary Bringham, of 154 Fourth street, N. W.

Trained Dog Blows Himself to Tag For Breaking Anti-Noise Ordinance

Copper, Master of 115 Tricks Including Tooting Car Horn To Summon Mistress, Draws Policeman Instead of Owner and Gets Ticket.

By LEE ROGERS. "Copper" got a ticket yesterday for blowing his horn too loud and too long.

The big four-year-old German police dog just got tired waiting for his mistress and started blowing for her. That usually brought her running, but yesterday the long toot was answered by an irritated traffic officer.

Knows 115 Tricks. "Copper" belongs to Miss Mary Bringham, of 154 Fourth street, N. W., and she has taught him to perform 115 or more tricks. All of which meant nothing to Officer M. L. Thomas, who wrote out a ticket charging violation of the city's anti-noise ordinance. "Copper" and his mistress learned yesterday that there is one thing this smart dog can't do—he can't fix a traffic ticket.

Miss Bringham parked her car in front of a store at Eighth and Peachtree about 4 o'clock and left "Copper" to guard it while she went in to make a purchase. The dog waited and waited but no mistress returned.

Being an impatient dog and, as pet of the family, accustomed to getting quick service, he placed a big paw on the horn and pushed. No response from his mistress and "Copper" blew again and again. Then Officer Thomas arrived on the scene.

Accepts Ticket. This was a poor substitute for his mistress, "Copper" thought, but, respecting the law, he ceased blowing his horn, calmly took his calling down and accepted the ticket. Miss Bringham arrived on the scene too late to argue with the officer, not that it would have done any good.

"Copper" wasn't downhearted by his failure to get the ticket "quashed." He heard several of the city officials were also in his class.

"Copper" is so named because his mistress saved him, and bought him with them. All he knows he owes to Miss Bringham. She has taught him his accomplishments.

The dog is a great comfort to his mistress. He opens the door, turns on the light switch, pulls down the windows, takes the receiver off the telephone and barks a "Hello!" He opens the garage door, puts or takes the key from the ignition and gives an imitation of driving the family bus.

Rings for Service. "Copper" eats breakfast at the table with his mistress and rings for service when he considers it bad. His meals must be served only by his owner or else he refuses to eat.

But here is the complete list of his accomplishments: Says "Out," waves bye-bye; comes to a certain tune; barks for pictures; brushes his teeth every day and hangs up his toothbrush; winks; makes eyes at pretty girls; jumps up on his hind feet and balances himself; releases a person that is tied; bounces ball to a person and to himself; dribbles a soccer ball; is quite a help at house cleaning; shaking rugs; gets his make-up bag, jumps through a window and unlocks the front door for his mistress.

Freezes in any position on command; guards things on instruction; jumps the rope; plays leap frog; high jumps and broad jumps; scales up tree for objects; picks up articles his mistress drops; opens and shuts doors; says prayers and waits in a kneeling position until "Amen" is said; crawls; walks on hind feet; opens drawer; puts slippers in and shuts the drawer; catches match box and balances it on his nose; crosses street only on permission; sits up; jumps over people, pony, chairs at command; turns over when you are over in bed; smokes a pipe; hides his eyes; wears goggles; boy suit at times; acts sick; brings person to mistress by taking his hand; knows a squirrel, dog, cat, rat, chicken; pulls up sheet when in bed; jumps through arms; executed; trots when told to hurry; lies down or on other side at command; crawls with person; head down on the command "Sh."

Shakes hands; scratches his back; speaks; tells his age; licks mouth to say "Good;" wakes his mistress up in the morning; brings the daily paper; opens mouth for medicine; pushes chairs into position; puts trash in basket; and many other accomplishments.

Everyone has a hobby, Miss Bringham says, and she declares hers is training "Copper."

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Major Bob Guinn, Beau Hudson and I got to Tom Glenn's lovely "Glenridge" home, near Sandy Springs, last Friday morning in time for breakfast at sunrise, and after eating breakfast within view of that magnificent panorama of hills that sweep away toward the Chattahoochee, the four of us put out for "Scout," the private lake and game reservation of Colonel Sam Tate's between Dawsonville and Tate. Scott Byers was waiting for us and at 8 o'clock we had traversed that wonderful road that winds in and out through the hills past Roswell, Alpharetta, Cumming and Dawsonville, and as we pulled up at the big gate that swings open in token of Colonel Tate's generous and gracious hospitality to his friends, the proud peafowl that always seems to stand guard in that lovely scene of God's creation, screamed three times to announce to all the inhabitants thereof—feathered, furred and finned—announcing the arrival of another one of those strange contrivances of man that pursues its way right into the quiet of their happy home.

Scott forewarned us that the bass and brim had not been interested lately in any sort of offerings, living or artificial, but that we would have lots of fun trying to fool them, which we did, of course—I mean we tried to fool them. If there is a prettier lake anywhere, I have not seen it. The mountains lift up and up all about the lake, mirroring themselves in a thousand glorious pictures. The clouds float into view, touched with heavenly tints no mortal hand could lend.

As we drove home Friday afternoon, we stopped for drinks at a filling station in the lovely scene of friends listening to Candler Clemments in one of the cleverest bits of take-off on certain public men any of us had heard in many a day. When we got down in old Milton, between Alpharetta and Roswell, Mr. Glenn stopped the car and asked us to feast our eyes upon that glorious landscape of fine farms with the horizon of noble hills that fade away toward the Blue Ridge. "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills whence cometh my help, unto the Lord who hath made heaven and earth," Selah.

brought Mama and sister back with me." Easterling looked long at the group at his bedside. His eyes were misty. He tossed his head and answered:

"Remember you are the lady who came here yesterday. But I don't know you. I only remember seeing you here in this room yesterday."

Mrs. Toler, in tears, approached the bed and lifted her brother's hand.

"Horace, you remember me, don't you? You must remember me," she sobbed. She drew to her side her small son. "And here is Bonnie. You remember Bonnie. And how you played marbles with him. He has his glasses on now, is that why you don't know him? Take off your glasses, Bonnie, so Uncle Horace will know you."

Little Bonnie removed his glasses and looked long at his Uncle Horace, but the latter showed no signs of recalling either sister or his nephew. He stared dazedly. "This is Mama, don't you know me?"

Again the silvery-haired mother, choking back tears, tried to aid in piercing the fog.

"This is Mama. I've come to take care of you. I've come to stay with you until you are well and we can go back to Mississippi together."

I'm Worried, Confused. "How I wish I knew you," he replied. "How I want to know you. But I can't remember. I don't know who you are. I'm sorry, very sorry, but there's something in my head. I'm worried. I'm confused. I don't even know who I am."

As a nurse entered he spoke to her in a cheerful manner.

"Hello, there you are again. These people here came to see me," he said, waving his hand at his mother, sisters and nephew.

Outside the room, Mrs. Easterling was weeping under the stress of sorrow and the realization that her son was unable to remember or to know her.

"He has been like this before, but only for a matter of hours. He is always all right within 12 hours at the very latest. But it has never been like this. When he tries to think his head begins to ache again. I am going to stay here at his bedside until he knows me."

Easterling had not been heard of by members of his family since last Friday when he stumbled up the steps at Crawford W. Long hospital and staggered at the desk begging attendants to help him establish his identity.

Clad in a bathing suit, sweater and shoes, Miss Wohlens left the Red Point cottage of Mrs. J. Clark Samuel, of Wilmington, Del., for fishing trip alone on the river. Her rowboat was found anchored in the river opposite Camp Chesapeake, a girl's summer camp. In it were her shoes, sweater and fishing equipment.

A black-hulled sailing boat containing six or seven men was reported by residents along the river as being in the vicinity a short time before the girl's rowboat was found.

The sailboat, with no one aboard, was found on the river between Elkton and Havre de Grace, Md. Police were unable to establish its ownership immediately. Several persons said they saw the sailboat approach Miss Wohlens' fishing boat.

Getting To Bottom of "Monster" Mystery

Harpoon-Armed Diver Searches For the 'Monster' of White River

Professional Fails To Find Either Overturned Boat or Undercurrent of Air During First Two Submersions; Is Under 2 Hours, 40 Minutes.

NEWPORT, Ark., July 22.—(AP) While an excited crowd of approximately 500 persons from four states looked on, a professional diver penetrated the depths of a White river eddy near here today without finding a clue to the stream's "monster" mystery.

Charles B. Brown, of Memphis, the diver, said after spending two hours and 40 minutes under water he found no overturned boat or undercurrent of air that would send bubbles to the surface. Persons who have reported seeing the marine creature said it had made its presence known by sending up occasional bubbles from the bottom. Others have expressed the belief the "monster" was nothing more than an old scow that occasionally rose to the surface.

Brown explored an area about 50 foot square today. He will continue his underwater search if necessary through Sunday.

Spectators at the scene today they can force the government back from its 100-square-mile salient if they can split its forces at Brunete.

On the other hand, the government is pointing the "thumb" toward Navalcarnero, south of Brunete, an important base for the siege of Madrid, and at Gatafe, further southwest, an extreme outpost of the siege lines.

Lift Capital Siege. The government high command believes that by driving behind the siege line, completely isolating it from the main body of the Insurgents, it can lift the siege of the capital and, possibly, deliver the crucial blow of the war.

"Hill No. 660," east of Villanueva de la Canada in the middle of the "thumb," again was the scene of fierce fighting. Insurgent troops driving from the east side of the "thumb" seized it yesterday in close-quarter fighting and government forces charged back today. It changed hands several times but late today was a virtual "no man's land" under such intensive artillery fire neither side could hold it.

Insurgents Wait. Insurgent infantry waited in trenches near Quijorna, Brunete and Villanueva del Pardillo, north of "Hill No. 660," while their artillery attempted to drive government troops from their positions.

Government artillery, employing similar tactics, tried to break up Insurgent concentrations at all three points while its troops remained under cover.

Both sides bombarded enemy rearguard positions. At least 25 persons were killed at Colmenar Viejo, north of Madrid, in an Insurgent air raid. Government artillery shelled Navalcarnero.

by that he knew the treasure had been in the tunnel.

Although Van Steek named Thorpe and Hill as co-finders of the gold and even charged to Bugaba police that the German tried to kill him to steal the treasure, neither of the other two men has been mentioned in official reports.

Thorpe, who was located at Concepcion, an outpost of civilization in Bugaba district, denied all knowledge of the treasure. Hill has not yet been found.

Police were unable to understand how three tons of gold could be moved without exciting attention of inhabitants of the region. Located high in the heavily-wooded mountains, the only communication with the rest of the republic is by mule train down narrow mountain paths.

President Orders Probe.

Pino has been ordered by the President to investigate thoroughly all facts connected with the alleged discovery. Authorities here, who officially confirmed the find after receiving reports from provincial officials, were at a loss to understand how two police captains and the Governor of Chiriqui were able to announce the discovery without any basis in fact. So convinced was the government that the treasure existed, that a tri-motor transport plane was sent to David, capital of Chiriqui, to fly the gold here for safe keeping.

Postal Clerks Urged To Say "Thank You"

HAZELHURST, Ga., July 22.—Arley D. Finley, postmaster, advocated a "thank you" from each postal employee to each buyer of a three-cent stamp.

"During the past four years the words 'thank you' have been repeated thousands of times at our office and we feel that regardless of the fact that we have no competition, it makes everyone feel better to be courteous at all times," Finley said.

The Newport Chamber of Commerce sponsored the search following reports the monster story was created to obtain publicity.

Newport stores closed and crowds flocked to the scene for what may turn out to be an epochal discovery or just a sunken boat or oil tank.

Half a dozen eye witnesses, including Bramlett Bateman, plantation owner, reported seeing a great creature rise to the surface on rare intervals, float silently for a few minutes and then submerge, making its presence known only by occasional snorts that bubbled up from the bottom.

Jury Appraises Second Tract for National Park at $35 an Acre.

A national park on Kennesaw mountain drew a step nearer yesterday when a jury in federal district court fixed a price of $35 an acre on 110 acres of land owned by Mrs. Colleen Reed Guthrie. One hundred and fifty dollars an acre had been asked.

It was the second condemnation verdict in two days. Wednesday the jury placed a price of $9,000 on 402 acres to be purchased from the Kennesaw Mountain Battlefield Association. Judge Samuel H. Sibley, of the United States circuit court of appeals, presided at both trials.

Purchase of the 110 acres will bring the government's holdings up to about 1,500 acres. The government plans to buy about 500 more acres.

Men's Sport Shirts Must Be Practical

The Test of Actual Conditions Has Been Met by Current Models, Such as Bush Shirt, and Pullover.

By ROBERT FAIRCHILD
Editor Men's Fashions

A sports shirt model has got to be practical before it can get anywhere in the acceptance of well-dressed men. Some self-styled poet of the designing board can evolve a fanciful garment incorporating the basic structural and aesthetic principles of a medieval cathedral, can borrow some rococo motif from Italian pottery of the same period, and offer this as a final synthesis of beauty in a sports shirt—but he won't get anybody to wear it. It won't be practical. It won't be comfortable. It won't give free movement of the arms and shoulders. It won't be cool. It won't even look smart—because these days the idea of smartness is closely associated in people's minds with that of comfort and suitability.

Sports shirts for the most part derive their inspiration from places where such comfortable utility shirts are necessary. For instance, the bush shirt, or tunic, that is creating such a style stir this year is a direct importation from the African jungles, by way of the Riviera of Europe and the Palm Beaches and Palm Springs of America. It is a button-down-front affair, with four useful patch pockets on the front, and an all-round belt. The back has an inverted center pleat, for added fullness.

Peasant Linen Is High Style

The material is most frequently linen—this is the high style. But it has also been found practical in lightweight corduroy, synthetic-yarn cloths, cottons, and other fabrics.

Another sports-shirt style—one that tenaciously holds its place.

New Dealers Seek Action on Other Legislation Before Congress Quits.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(P)—Administration forces in congress began rallying on a new defensive line today even before the court bill controversy was swept aside in the senate by an overwhelming vote. Yet the line they selected only emphasized the completeness of their rout in the bitter court fight.

After Senator Robinson's death a little more than a week ago, a virtual stampede for quick adjournment of congress started. Today, administration supporters were digging in against a renewal of that stampede as a result of the vote that shelved the judiciary bill.

Court Bill Foes Elated.

Elated leaders of the anti-court bill forces expected to complete their job of writing a new bill over the next week-end.

Thus quick action on it by congress will be possible. But certain administration men in both houses want action also on other projects like wage-hour, housing and farm legislation before congress quits.

In illustration of the swift change that swept over the capital scene with Senator Robinson's death, it may be recalled that less than 10 days ago administration spokesmen were then counting heavily on these very bills to aid in the court drive. They had hoped that supporters of the various bills would decide that a revamped court was necessary to make such legislation "stick."

Roosevelt Non-Committal.

Aside from this, several questions arose today in the minds of contestants on both sides of the Democratic split over the court bill. The exact position of President Roosevelt himself as to what has happened remains unclear. He has not spoken out since his recent letter to Senator Barkley demanding that the court bill battle be fought to a finish.

RIDDLED LIQUOR CAR SOUGHT AFTER CHASE

An alleged whisky car, its rear punctured with bullet holes, was being sought by police in Atlanta last night following a general broadcast.

Rucker Newberry said, to his knowledge, is the first of its kind ever undertaken.

Two to a canoe, the Scouts will spend six days en route, stopping each night at a convenient place to hang their hammocks.

At Savannah the party will be met by Scout Executive Bill Parks and carried to the Scout camp, where they will spend Saturday night. The canoes will be shipped back upstream.

TRAXLER IS FACED WITH CHAIR THREAT

Captors Join Effort to Send Wounded Badman to His Death.

HUGO, Okla., July 22.—(P)—Two courageous hostages who halted the wild flight of Roy (Pete) Traxler with his own firearms joined prosecutors tonight in efforts to send the escaped Texas desperado to the electric chair.

County attorneys of both Madison and Bryan counties, both of whom charged Traxler with armed robbery, a capital offense, said the hostages, James A. Denton and Frank Trimmer, agreed to help prosecute the outlaw they wounded after slaying his fugitive companion, Fred Tindol.

Saying he was "almost certain" Traxler, now in custody of the Choctaw county sheriff, would be released to the two counties for trial, Colby added, "We have him here in Oklahoma and I don't see why he should be turned over to Texas."

Traxler was serving a 99-year sentence for armed robbery when he escaped with eight other convicts from Eastham (Texas) prison farm July 8.

Previously Governor James W. Allred, of Texas, had announced he would seek extradition of the wounded outlaw. Traxler had said he would "rather die" than be returned to Texas.

TWO HELD IN ARKANSAS ROBBERY, MURDER

EL DORADO, Ark., July 22.—(P)—A brief report of terror which included a $60 drug store holdup and slaying of Policeman Jim Yocum terminated abruptly near here early today with the capture of two men.

One of them, wounded in the right leg, gave the name of Jack Horn, 59, Amarillo, Texas, but later said he was Tom J. Hutto, Dallas. He denied knowledge of the holdup and killing.

The other was A. C. Wheatley, about 47, El Dorado taxi driver whose car was used in the holdup. He claimed he picked up Hutto on a routine call and fled when officers forced his cab from the highway three miles from the city.

Daring Hostage Recounts Capture Of Traxler, Killing of Companion

Captives Coolly Bided Their Time Until Weary Fugitives' Attention Flashed; Then They Seized Pistols From Their Captors' Hands, Opened Fire.

By JAMES E. DENTON.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 22.—I came very nearly going riding with Pete Traxler and Fred Tindol without my pants Wednesday. It happened this way. I went to Kingston from my home in Asher to visit my father, W. M. Denton.

Just as I walked in the kitchen these two fellows came bursting through the door. Tindol had a rifle over his arm and Traxler held a revolver in his hand. I had a pretty good idea who they were because I knew a big hunt was on for them. I knew, too, I wasn't going to take any chances with them.

"Where's your keys?" he said. He trotted right at my heels as I went to the bedroom. I took time to put on my pants. He kept after me to hurry up.

When I had my pants on I felt down in my pocket and gave him the keys. He tossed them in his hands a moment and then he said: "I'm afraid we're going to have to take you with us."

We drove along maybe three hours. Finally we got on to a road with sandy mud. Traxler speeded up. He liked to drive fast apparently and we slipped off into a ditch.

UNITY IS EXPECTED IN JAPANESE DIET

Threat of War Has Eliminated Any Lingering Traces of Dissension.

By FRANK T. HEDGES.
(Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

TOKYO, July 22.—(By Wire)—With a critical situation existing in North China which threatens to break out into an undeclared war at any moment, the Japanese diet, reassembling tomorrow, is certain to move with extreme rapidity in passing all the bills presented by the government.

All factions having already been welded into unity under the premiership of Prince Konohe, the war threat has eliminated any lingering traces of dissension.

The government is expected to control of military secrets. The diet and submit measures designed further to strengthen the governmental structure and amplify its powers during the emergency.

A supplementary budget of about 50,000,000 yen (about $15,000,000) is likely to be introduced immediately for the prosecution of the Japanese military campaign in North China.

May Extend Powers.

There is also a possibility that Premier Konohe will ask most extensive powers enabling him to appropriate additional funds between sessions of the diet in the event that the Sino-Japanese crisis becomes more acute.

The Japanese war office intends to present bills for revision of the conscription law and for stricter control of military secrets.

The diet is meeting in extraordinary session for two weeks. A remarkably large number of bills is believed certain to be passed, for most of them deal with economic measures approved by the entire Japanese cabinet.

Some time ago it was believed there might be a dispute between the two major parties, the Minseitō and the Seiyūkai, over the chairmanship of the all-important budget committee.

This dispute apparently has already been adjusted among the leaders of the two parties and a satisfactory compromise reached so that they are now working in the remarkable and unusual co-operation first brought into existence by their joint opposition to the two non-party governments which preceded the Konohe ministry.

This Minseitō-Seiyūkai unity of action, backed by public opinion, succeeded in wrecking both of those governments, one of them headed by Koki Hirota, present foreign minister, and the other by the retired army officer, General Senjuro Hayashi.

PARLIAMENT HALTS PALESTINE DIVISION

Britain Votes To Defer Definite Commitment.

LONDON, July 22.—(P)—Opponents of the proposed partition of Palestine today drew encouragement from parliament's decision that Britain must tread slowly.

Enemies of the British royal commission's plan for a "surgical operation" to remove the empire's major difficulties in the Holy Land said parliament's vote early today to defer Britain's definite commitment to the scheme increased hopes of revising or blocking it.

The partition plan, embodied in a government white paper, proposing that Palestine be divided into a Jewish state, an Arab state and a British mandate, will go now to the League of Nations. This will give opportunity for further investigation and study of the scheme in London.

TROPICS EXPLORER TELLS HOW TO KEEP COOL!

Mr. Robert Shippee, famous tropics explorer, says: "Exploring uncharted jungle wastes takes vitality out of me that only tea replaces. The torrid heat and the terrible humidity of equatorial climate saps a man's vitality to the bone. I'm keen about the way tea makes me cool and keeps me cool."

The difference between tea and other so-called cooling drinks is this: Tea does more than merely quench thirst. Tea actually LOWERS the body temperature. Its cooling effect is more LASTING.

Turn to tea today for coolness and DELICIOUS taste. To get real VITALITY and the full flavor of tea, select a good brand of Orange Pekoe that comes from India, Ceylon, and Java-Sumatra.

COURT FIGHT IS HELD GREATEST BATTLE SINCE SLAVE ISSUE

Here Is Outline of Epic
Struggle Over Altering
Highest Tribunal.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP)—The shelving of President Roosevelt's proposal to reorganize the supreme court climaxes one of the greatest political struggles since the fight over slavery.

The beginnings of the conflict date back to Mr. Roosevelt's first term, when congress, at his request, passed unprecedented emergency legislation and the supreme court struck down much of it.

Chief among the measures to fall had been the Agricultural Adjustment Act and the code provisions of the National Recovery Act.

Then the President stood for reelection and carried every state except Maine and Vermont. On February 5 of this year he sent to a surprised congress his proposal to reorganize the court.

It was apparent from the first his recommendations faced tremendous opposition in congress.

Some Democrats joined Republicans in crying the President was trying to "pack the court."

Supporters replied he was endeavoring only to "unpack" a court already "packed" against social and economic progress.

Liberals Split.

Despite the arguments of the latter, legislators known generally as liberals continued to split rapidly over the issue.

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, a campaigner for the President and co-author of the administration's law regulating public utility holding companies, sided with the opposition. Senator La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin, sided with the President. Senator Norris, of Nebraska, an old independent ally of Mr. Roosevelt, contended the administration measure was not the best way to attain New Deal objectives but agreed to vote for it if nothing better could be worked out.

The senate became the battleground because all hands agreed it was there the legislation faced its greatest test.

Apparently undaunted by the obstacles, Mr. Roosevelt, at a Democratic victory dinner on March 4, urged action "now" to overcome supreme court "vetoes" of New Deal programs.

F. D. R. Renews Plea.

Again, on March 9, he discussed the issue with the country in a broadcast address.

"We must take action to save the constitution from the court," he said on that occasion.

Attorney General Cummings was the first administration witness before the senate judiciary committee. He said that congress should permit the President to appoint new justices of "fresh outlook" who would not infringe on congressional powers.

Senator Wheeler, who by this time had assumed leadership of the opposition, read a letter from Chief Justice Hughes. An increase in the number of supreme court justices, Mr. Hughes said, "would not promote the efficiency of the court."

Opponents made increasing demands for abandonment of reorganization after the court, on April 12, upheld the Wagner labor relations act, 5-to-4.

Civic Leader Turns Another Milestone

At 71 and amid a roomful of flowers sent by his friends, Colonel Frederic J. Paxon is shown as he stopped yesterday to look back on his fruitful life. A man's age in spirit, he says, is what counts.

Man Has No Right To Grow Old, Paxon Asserts as He Reaches 71

Atlanta Merchant and Civic Enthusiast Declares World Is Young and Aging Men Must Attune Minds to It: Declares Age of Spirit Is What Counts Heaviest in Life.

By RALPH T. JONES.

Colonel Frederic J. Paxon, mercantile leader, civic enthusiast, bon vivant and Atlantan par excellence, yesterday paused awhile in the enjoyment of life as he finds it and contemplated the intriguing fact that he is 71 years old.

Entering the 72d year of an existence that has witnessed more success than falls to the lot of the average man, Colonel Paxon likened himself to an old motor, still hitting smoothly on all eight cylinders and convincing the world it is as young as ever by dint of a recent overhauling.

"Man has no right to grow old, mentally at least," the colonel commented. "There's no reason for it. This is a young world and all that is necessary for lifelong enjoyment of it is to tune your mind to its ever-sparking juvenescence."

Flowers galore and well wishes from friends who came in almost steady stream, all day long, to his office on the fifth floor of the Davidson-Paxon Company, marked the anniversary. By the way, Colonel Paxon rather insists on the use of that word "anniversary."

He said, "I like it because it avoids the need of saying a man is so many years old. After all, who cares how many years it is since the important date—to the individual concerned, at least—when he first opened his eyes to the New Deal, announced his retirement on May 18, the opponents argued there was no longer any possible need for the President's bill. On that same day, voted 10 to 8, to recommend rejection of the legislation.

Then the supreme court upheld the social security act and the judiciary committee reported formally to the senate the bill represented "a needless, futile and utterly dangerous abandonment of constitutional principle."

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, afterward informed the President privately the method of judicial reorganization he had proposed would have to be altered.

On July 2 administration forces proposed a compromise bill to authorize the appointment of one additional justice each calendar year if incumbents past 75 did not retire.

The senate began bitter debate on the compromise bill on July 5, Senator Robinson invoking drastic rules to prevent a filibuster.

Revolt in House.

Revolt against the legislation spread to the house on July 13, when Chairman Sumners, Democrat, Texas, of the powerful judiciary committee came out against it.

Senator Robinson died next day, and legislators generally agreed his death was a hard blow to the court bill drive.

A truce was declared by both sides, but strategy conferences continued and the President wrote Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the acting Democratic leader, that opponents were taking advantage of the period of mourning.

Mr. Roosevelt reiterated it was the duty of congress to approve reorganization of the judiciary, including the supreme court, at this session. The method, he said, was up to congress.

Final.

Early this week Vice President Garner took word to the President that a group of previously uncommitted senators would vote to shelve the issue unless a compromise settlement were worked out quickly. The opponents already had been claiming enough votes to bury the bill.

The vice president asked the opposition yesterday to state its peace terms and was informed the administration would have to drop any idea of enlarging the supreme court.

Today the senate shelved the legislation, sending it back to its judiciary committee, which agreed to draft a substitute eliminating provisions for supreme court enlargement.

Recorder's Court Echoes To Singing—Of Hymns

Recorder's court—2:30 o'clock session—was turned into a hymn singing convention yesterday afternoon with his honor, Judge John L. Cone, joining in on the chorus.

The session's business was completed by 3 o'clock and Patrolman K. W. Wooster sat down at the piano and struck up a tune. Court Collector Bill Armstrong, Probation Officer Charles Ragsdale, Clerk Charles Murphy and Judge Cone joined in the musical with lusty voices.

After a short session, Judge Cone called a halt. "Boys, we've got to let the echo clear out so we can hear the evidence at the 4:30 session."

No change in the supreme court. No roving judges of the lower courts, and no proctor to assign them from district to district. Provisions for direct appeal to the supreme court when the constitutionality of a federal statute is challenged.

Authority for the attorney general to intervene in lower court proceedings when the constitutionality of a federal statute is challenged.

Provision for the reassignment of judges to the lower courts by the senior judges of the individual districts.

Need—Not Age.

New judges to be appointed on a basis of need and not of age. Chairman Ashurst, of the judiciary committee, still characterized the debate and smiling, put the Burke motion. Two dissenting votes were heard from Senators Hatch, Democrat, New Mexico, and Hughes, Democrat, Delaware. Quickly the extraordinary and history-making meeting was adjourned.

The senate was just meeting.

SENATE DEFEATS JUDICIARY REFORM

bill earlier in the day. The opposition was in clear control.

It was decided that Senator Logan, Democrat, Kentucky, should have committed, and that the committee should then draft a new bill including only provision for intervention by the attorney general and direct appeal to the supreme court when the constitutionality of a federal statute is challenged in the lower courts, and additional lower court judges on "a basis of need, not of age."

Logan Puts Motion.

At the first opportunity, Logan put the motion. The senate was packed for what the opposition called "the funeral" of the supreme court plan. House members crowded curiously about the rear of the chamber.

Senator Johnson, Republican, California, anxious to make the now well-known agreement a matter of record, asked Logan for particulars. He quietly supplied them.

"Then the supreme court is out of the way?" Johnson asked.

"The supreme court is out of the way," Logan quietly replied.

"Glory be to God," said Johnson, and a burst of cheering and applause swept the galleries.

The roll call started immediately. Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, through his position near the head of the senate's alphabetical list, easily made clear the attitude of the leadership. He voted to recommit.

The Twenty Nays.

The 20 who voted against were: Bilbo (Mississippi), Black (Alabama), Bone (Washington), Bulkley (Ohio), Caraway (Arkansas), Chavez (New Mexico), Ellender (Louisiana), Green (Rhode Island), Guffey (Pennsylvania), Hatch (New Mexico), Hitchcock (South Dakota), Hughes (Delaware), McKellar (Tennessee), Neely (West Virginia), Schwartz (Wyoming), Schwellenbach (Washington), Snodgrass (New Jersey), and Truman (Missouri), all Democrats, and La Follette (Progressive, Wisconsin), and Lundeen (Farmer-Labor, Minnesota).

La Follette announced that Senator Norris, of Nebraska, absent because of illness, would have voted "no," and Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, announced that his colleague, Senator Hayden, Democrat, Arizona, also ill, would have voted "aye."

Although not members of the judiciary committee, Vice President Garner and Senator Barkley, the majority leader, attended the committee session at which the decision to bury the Roosevelt bill was reached. They had an alternative proposal but it was immediately denied them, in fact, it was almost shouted down.

Garner Is Tearful.

Both spoke at length; senators who attended said Garner, "with tears in his eyes," pleaded that the committee work out some formula that would "save the party" and the country from the furious dissension aroused by the original bill.

At Garner's talk of party harmony, Senator McCarran, Democrat, Nevada, an opponent of the bill, interrupted to bring up a subject bitterly discussed in senate sessions. Farther back, he said, but the administration was already at work to beat him for re-election.

No Reprisals.

Garner quickly told the group that in his opinion there should be no reprisals, that if he had anything to say about it there will be none. The senators said, however, there are no definite assurances that none will follow.

Barkley asked that the bill be left pending before the senate and that over the week end, the committee draft a bill to measure off its docket. Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, floor leader of the opposition, also a non-member of the committee, was present, too, keeping his forces in line behind the plan he himself worked out a few days ago—recommittal and abandonment of the supreme court increase.

His was an easy task. The opposition was so thoroughly agreed that little discussion was necessary to put the proposal in concrete form and give it committee approval.

New Bill in 10 Days.

Senator Burke, Democrat, Nebraska, moved Senator Logan, a co-author of the pending bill, be "instructed to the earliest opportunity to move to reconsider the pending court bill and all amendments thereto with instructions to report back a judicial reform bill not later than 10 days hence."

Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, seconded the motion, and made clear the supplemental understanding. The latter contained these points:

No change in the supreme court. No roving judges of the lower courts, and no proctor to assign them from district to district. Provisions for direct appeal to the supreme court when the constitutionality of a federal statute is challenged.

Authority for the attorney general to intervene in lower court proceedings when the constitutionality of a federal statute is challenged.

Provision for the reassignment of judges to the lower courts by the senior judges of the individual districts.

Need—Not Age.

New judges to be appointed on a basis of need and not of age. Chairman Ashurst, of the judiciary committee, still characterized the debate and smiling, put the Burke motion. Two dissenting votes were heard from Senators Hatch, Democrat, New Mexico, and Hughes, Democrat, Delaware. Quickly the extraordinary and history-making meeting was adjourned.

The senate was just meeting.

Marriage Palls, Bride, 13, Joins Playmates

Thirteen-year-old Mrs. Margaret Snell, of Hapeville, is shown above with James Wood, neighborhood playmate, after separating from her 19-year-old husband, John Snell, "because I didn't like being married." She says she doesn't know the whereabouts of her husband.

Members gathered in little knots to learn what had been decided. Vice President Garner had to rap his gavel repeatedly to bring the chamber to order and even then there was an uproarious cluster of senators at the rear of the room.

It consisted of Senators Logan, Burke and O'Mahoney explaining the decision of Senator Guffey, Democrat, Pennsylvania, ardent supporter of the bill, and Guffey gesticulating his indignation.

But the decision speedily was ratified by the senate. The judiciary committee will meet tomorrow to begin drafting the new bill.

SENATORS LAUGH AT REPRISAL TALK

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP)—Senate foes of the court bill jubilantly exchanged congratulations on their victory today and laughed off talk of possible administration reprisals.

"They don't dare take this issue on to a political platform," Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, told newsmen.

"They won't mention it," Senator Burke, Democrat, Nebraska, another of the opposition leaders, agreed. "I would welcome reprisals. I don't know anything that would so well assure my reelection for the balance of my life."

Senator Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina, said, "I don't think there will be any reprisals. The war is over. The thing to do now is talk about reconciliation."

Some Lowdowns About Higherups At Mayors' Rally

Mayor J. H. Sheppard, of Edison, should be able to agree with his councilmen and vice versa. Of the four who serve with him, one is a brother-in-law, one a first cousin and another is a second cousin. The mayor is here attending the convention of the Georgia Municipal Association.

Subjects commanding much attention among mayors and councilmen in informal discussions of the convention floor include social security legislation and the distribution of tax money.

When Mayor Thomas L. Bell warns up in chatting about the American baseball team's chances to win the Georgia-Florida pennant, he's talking from long experience in watching pennants rise and fall.

For 10 years he was manager of a semi-pro team in Americus. He brought to Americus the team that boasted "Sholess" Joe Jackson and three other clouters who hit over 400 for an entire season. That was back in 1925.

He's still a keen judge of diamond material and a quick analyst of the game.

Youthful Mayor A. M. Anderson, of Perry, responding to Mayor William B. Hartsfield's welcome, said he was glad the latter didn't say "I want you to feel at home, boys."

"This is an occasion once a year when I want to feel away from home for a change," said Anderson.

Mayor G. W. Harris, of College Park, cruises about the city at nights in police cars, and sometimes alone in his own automobile.

SECOND SHIP SIGHTS MYSTERY AIRPLANE

Radio Message Received
From British Steamer
Confirming Report.

NEW YORK, July 22.—(AP)—

A second radio message which appeared to confirm a report of a mystery airplane drifting over the Atlantic toward Europe was received here today by Radiomarine Corporation.

The American freighter Scanmage last night, reported that the British steamship Coryton, bound from Pensacola, Fla., to Glasgow, Scotland, had sighted the plane's lights.

A third message was received by the coast guard station at Salem, Mass., from the Furness liner Queen of Bermuda at noon (E. S. T.) The liner radioed "Plane passing overhead," but the ship was approximately 175 miles from Bermuda, several hundred miles south of the spot where the plane first was reported.

Air line officials here said the plane sighted by the Queen of Bermuda was undoubtedly the Pan-American Airways' Bermuda Clipper which left its Port Washington (N. Y.) base this morning on a regular passenger flight to Bermuda.

Trio of Prominent Atlantans Exchange Birthday Greetings

By Sally Forth.

THREE well-known Atlantans exchanged birthday greetings yesterday in telegrams sent each other by Mrs. John E. Murphy, Fredrick J. Paxon and Edward H. Barnes. They were born on July 22, the anniversary date upon which the Battle of Atlanta was fought during the War Between the States.

It has been the annual custom of the trio of friends to meet upon the date each year, but since Mrs. Murphy has been numbered among the "shut-ins" for several years, this pleasure has been denied the Atlantans.

Mr. Paxon's telegram to Mrs. Murphy contained a poem expressing his best wishes, and Mr. Barnes wired, "I recall many pleasant happenings on our dual birthdays."

Mrs. Murphy was born here and was a leader in the smartest social life of Atlanta. Some of the most brilliant entertainments in the history of the city took place in her handsome home that crowns the hill at Peachtree and Fourteenth streets, and some of the most notable people in the United States were her guests during those halcyon days. Mrs. Murphy was famous for her gracious manner and the rare quality of the hospitality she dispensed.

Mr. Paxon and Mr. Barnes first saw the light of day in other cities, but they adopted Atlanta as their very own when they were very young men. They have hosts of friends here to congratulate them upon passing another milestone.

Joan Crawford Advocates an Hour's Relaxation Each Day

Your Figure, Madam
By IDA JEAN KAIN.

JOAN CRAWFORD GIVES A LESSON IN GOOD FORM.

If they were to give my say about who is to be Scarlett O'Hara, I would select Joan Crawford, who probably more than any other star, shares Scarlett's traits of high courage and a determination that is not to be downed.

To appreciate those qualities in Miss Crawford, you have only to look back through the old screen star photographs of 10 years ago. This actress has made herself over from a somewhat plump and gauche little girl into a poised and lovely star. Today there is no star in Hollywood with a better figure—and there is no athlete who trains more consistently. This training has been going on for years, and at 31 her measurements are symmetry to the 'nth degree. Bust, 35 inches; hips, 36 1-2 inches; waist, 26 inches. She weighs 110 pounds and is five feet, four inches tall.

You, who would give anything for a figure as lovely as Joan Crawford's, have only to work for it the way she has. Every morning she runs around the badminton court four times lifting her knees high in the air. There is no better hip-slimming exercise. This is followed by a dip in the pool, with Joan swimming its length several times. She plays tennis or badminton, usually about three times a week. Just in case you think she may have missed a muscle or two, she also takes daily singing and dancing lessons.

This star, who puts so much into work, play and exercise, also gives relaxation its due. She believes that everyone owes herself an hour's complete relaxation every day.

"This may not mean lying down," Miss Crawford points out, "but just letting go to do whatever you want for one hour each day."

Keep your figure with exercise—the hard way.

Miss Crawford does not diet. If she did, she could not have so much vitality. She eats sensibly, but counts the calories and has trained her appetite to like the things which keep her fit but not fat. She drinks milk, eats plenty of green vegetables, particularly salads and fresh fruits, and chooses only broiled lean meats.

Exercise and Diet.
It takes an intelligently planned and faithfully executed program to produce radiance and a supple figure. Women lose their looks when they neglect the exercise and diet that promote health. You should realize that when you rest on your laurels, you lose your looks.

Instead of fading, this star shines more brilliantly with every performance, and the secret of her increasing beauty is that she grows more radiantly healthy on an unrelenting program of work, exercise and relaxation.

It is no exaggeration to say that any woman can have a beautiful figure provided she is willing to work for it. Now send for your daily dozen!

Shopping with Sallybelle

Sallybelle has decided she can't live without one of the new "chubby" swaggar coats. The only difficulty is to make a choice. Here she wears a dark skunk, which is one of the fashion's favorites. It is bulky and brief and exaggerates the slimmness of her autumn pencil-line frock.

Here she turns her back so you may see the new fashion features of this gray Russian caracul. Notice the narrow back and exaggerated sleeves. The small band collar is also new and very young. Sallybelle finds these new coats so very wearable. Combined to make ensembles, they can be worn morning, noon and night.

Sallybelle can already see herself creating a sensation at the football games in this slim Ocelot jigger. It is double-breasted with wide revers. In case you don't recognize an Ocelot, it is from South America and resembles leopard, only the spots are elongated. It is a very soft and smart-looking fur.

There is no time when Sallybelle wouldn't adore wearing this black Persian lamb jigger. It can be casual, yet with a change of ensemble can be formal enough for any occasion. All of Sallybelle's fur fashions were sketched in Atlanta stores. For information where they may be found call The Constitution and ask for the Fashion Editor.

FUR NEWS: The "Chubby" Jigger Coats

FRIENDLY COUNSEL
By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name need not be published. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: How can you deal with an antagonistic sister-in-law? She sits on a neighbor's porch, gathering place for six or eight people on summer afternoons, and relates all the ups and downs of her life as mine. Next favorite spot for her scurrilous gossip is the beauty shop, where she can be sure of an eager, interested audience. It would be bad enough if she stuck to facts but she doesn't. When I hear the stories about incidents which really happened they are hardly recognizable. Should I take her to task or just outlive the wave of publicity she has started?

P. C.

Answer: The best way to deal with an antagonistic sister-in-law is to treat her with strict politeness, tell her nothing and take her nowhere. This may not keep her from talking but it will keep her from quoting you and it will certainly cut down her output. Nobody has ever discovered anything better than dignified silence as a defense against the invasion of one's privacy, and the spread of gossip.

Remember the old adage: It's a poor bird that will foul its own nest. If instead of teaching the bird better manners, the other birds can't. Same way with people who don't know any better than to entertain their acquaintances with tales of private family affairs. You can't curb them by cutting them out. However, here's the comfort: Even those who cup their ears to get the last drop feel contemptuous of the poor bird who is telling the tales and they discount what they hear to a large extent.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I am in a pother and so confused and disturbed that I am asking your help. My husband-to-be snores so he can be heard to block out my sleep. He has confided in me about it and can I approach him on this very delicate subject before the nocturnal howls spoil our happiness? He is the perfect fiancé: makes a fine salary per; neither drinks nor gambles; is very reliable. Surely I shouldn't let a few snore stand in the way of lifelong security.

H. H.

Answer: Where is your sense of humor, sister? You had better find it and hold on to it, or that married happiness you are longing for will be gone with the first snore.

If the fiancé is super-sensitive, lay off the subject. If he isn't you might suggest that he has a specialist look at his nose and throat. Enlarged tonsils and adenoids bring on snores; and so does age. So maybe there's a cure and maybe there's not. After all good moral habits are much more important than snoring habits and you should thank your lucky stars that when the fiancé is conscious he's perfect. You can hardly fall out with him over what he does when he is asleep.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: We were to be married in June. A month ago I went down to surprise her with a ring but she had a bigger surprise for me: she told me it was all off. She would give me no reason, said there was no other. Feeling to get any satisfaction I lost my temper, cursed and walked away. My letters don't bring any response. She won't see me. What do you think of all this?

Answer: I think you should be glad that your surprise came before the ceremony of putting on the ring. As it is you are getting off with much less embarrassment and much less anguish than if you had gone through as planned. Nobody knows the why and wherefore but he who runs may read writing on the wall. The girl didn't love you and she wasn't willing to go through with the promise to do a long stretch. You have plenty of consolation and plenty of reason for being so lucky stars that she let you out in time even though she was a poor sport in doing it.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

But photography can be more than keeping a record. Make your pictures striking, artistic, full of human interest. A few pointers: 1. Diagonal lines as shown here give a sense of motion and drama.

2. Take the children—not squinting into the sun—but busily making mud pies, with the sun at the side for good lighting.

4. For lovely cloud effects, cut the usual landscape exposure to a half or a quarter. Or keep skies from being wide, over-exposed blanks by fitting a sky filter—half yellow, half white—over your lens, with yellow portion covering the sky.

5. Avoid taking self-conscious people stiffly standing in rows. Instead of posing mother side by side with brother home from college, snap them as mother all aglow greets him at the train.

Our new 40-page booklet, SUCCESSFUL AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHY, gives diagrams and photographs illustrating these and other pointers for beginners and advanced amateurs. Take successful vacation snaps, in or out of doors. Child portraits. Winning prize contests.

Cooling Bath Luxuries For This Wilting, Withering Weather

By LILLIAN MAE.

The sizzling, simmering weather is upon us to stay for at least a while, it seems, so it behooves us to use all possible methods to combat it artificially.

Of course, there is no denying that a frequent bath helps, but in addition, there are bath aids which make tub-time a refreshing delight, the effects of which may be felt for hours.

A woman who has been beautifying other women in all parts of the world for many years, presents a pasteurized milk bath, which may be obtained in several different delightful fragrances. It transforms the bath water into a white milky mass of bubbles, so soothing to tired and jangled nerves that there is no desire to rush through with what is so often regarded as a ritual. An almost invisible film of the milk clings to the skin, helping to keep it cool, soft and smooth.

There is some deodorizing agent incorporated in the preparation, so I am told, to guard against perspiration odors for many hours after emerging from the tub. For a feeling of real luxury, I've found nothing to compare with this soft, bubbly, and altogether delightful milk bath.

When all is said and done, one must leave the bath, regardless of the fact that it is the most pleasant place to be these days, so the same woman who offers the milk bath has a new velvety fine body sachet which adds just the finish to your luxury bath. This powder, packaged in a large generous shaker-top box with a puff which is suggestive of floating breezes, absorbs even the slightest suggestion of moisture. It gives to the body a cool, air-conditioning effect.

Try a box of this body sachet in gardenia, carnation or one of the other lasting odors. The fragrance is intensified by contact with the body. I've been asked so many times what that "wonderful perfume you are wearing" is, that I believe it must be about the best perfume perfume one can use for summertime. Men especially rave about it, and many of them who have made inquiry of me concerning it have asked me to order a box for their wives. That's really complimenting a product, isn't it?

Not satisfied with cooling and perfuming milady's body, this internationally known beauty authority has gone a step further and is now bringing out lovely new satin sachet pillows in jasmine, carnation, lilac and gardenia, so that lingerie, handkerchiefs and scarfs may be in perfume harmony with their owner. What is lovelier than stepping into clothes fresh and sweet-smelling?

Call me at my office in The Constitution building for the names of these products which will go far toward making you look cool, and feel altogether charming, during this hard-to-endure weather. If you do not live in Atlanta, accompany your request with a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH McRAE BOYKIN

Mannikins aren't the only ones that can prance—a room can strut its stuff, too!

Don't think that mannikins are the only ones who can prance proudly about in advance fall models at the fashion shows. A room can practically prance, too, we'll have you know, because we went to a fashion show of interior decoration the other day and saw a preview of fashions in fall furnishings. These rooms looked down their noses in the best manner and all but paraded their smartness for the guests to see.

It was at a newly opened model house not far from where we live, furnished in an interesting interpretation of modern and traditional designs in decoration. As a harbinger of new fashions in furnishings, we're certain that it represents many trends worth watching.

Big Sprawly Designs.

The all-over figured carpet, for instance. That has been out of style for so long that most of us remember it only in funny antiquated little houses of old ladies in our childhood. But interior decorators are using it more and more... many of their favored patterns are quite Victorian with their big sprawly designs. Others have French or Georgian character and a few are rather modern in HYDE PARK, N. Y., Wednesday.—It is a gorgeous day today and we are driving down to Lake Mahopac to have luncheon with some friends.

Yesterday a most interesting letter came in the mail. It brought up a situation which has been before many of us for a long time. As a rule, we all think of it as mass problem and it is only when an individual comes before us, as in this case, that the problem becomes a personal situation. Here are some excerpts from this letter to me:

"But why do convicts, particularly those who mean to reform, return to a life of crime? Perhaps my situation, typical of many, may briefly show this. I was released from prison nine months ago with $12 in cash—$9 I had saved through prison work, $2 personal cash and $1 from the state. Well, I did have a place to go to—a job as caretaker of a small country house at $2 per week. After being there 16 weeks without receiving salary and being half the time without food because the owner failed to bring any, I came to Paterson, N. J., to the home of my brother.

"He couldn't afford to support me, but willingly did, believing that I really wanted to do the right thing. I've made every effort to get a job and go straight. I've sought the help of anyone who might be able to, including city officials. All I want is a chance to earn an honest living. I've been told that I would not be accepted for CCC camps and I can understand why. Is there anything strange in the fact that I don't go to the proper authorities in order to inquire, because I have tried desperately hard to forget my past life and don't want to sit down and go into full details? The same thing applies to relief. What chance have I got? I don't want to go wrong. I love outdoors, animals, etc. I'm unusually strong and 34 years of age."

It is needless to say this is not something about which to be sentimental. These men who come out of prison have offended against society. They cannot expect that society will immediately forget their offense. On the other hand, for its own protection, society would do well to make it at least possible for such men and women who really wish to go straight, to go straight. We must face the fact that once a person has found it possible to get a living by crooked means, he has a knowledge which makes it easier to return to those ways than if he had never known them. Therefore it is harder to keep in the straight narrow path of virtue.

I wish every community from which individuals go to prison had an organization which would be notified when they are returned to society. This organization's responsibility should then be to find these individuals a job, suited to their capacities and training, which would bring them a decent living. At the same time, some one person beside the parole officer, who has a few hundred people to look after, should have the responsibility of helping these men and women to adjust themselves back to their environment. They must begin to do things for others and be useful outside of the act of their work, or they will not feel themselves anchored permanently to their good intentions.

motif. These carpets are in 27-inch widths and the seams don't seem to matter any more.

Grayed and subtle colorings. We've been harping on that trend for many months, so we hope you're prepared for the fact that it is really here. You'll want your greens in dull almost drab versions—olive and bottle green in place of the clear emerald tones that formerly were tops. You'll want dusty rose tones instead of the "between" blues that are coming in on the fashion picture. You'll love the new beige shades—creamy, pinkish versions rather than brownish or yellowish as of yore. And the dull yellows, the tarnished golds, the mustard tones are simply stunning.

Dark Walls With Light Floor Coverings. This is a dramatic and fascinating combination that is growing in importance. Many of the light floor coverings are very impractical. Others are much more usable than they appear at first glance. For example, the texture weaves and the subtle two tone patterns give the effect of a plain color, but have enough pattern to keep foot marks from shining out.

Simpler Window Treatments. Very few swags for windows are being shown this season. Draperies aren't ornate and tie backs are getting scarcer in formal draperies. Well tailored straight hung draperies with a molting cornice across the top are the smartest thing, but a simple valance is seen about too.

Modern Colors With Period Accessories. There is a wide use of old porcelains and traditional accessories and period furniture in brilliantly modern backgrounds. (Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution.)

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

OLD-FASHIONED CHILDREN AND MODERN MOTHERS.

From New England Mrs. W. J. W. writes:

"I don't know why a house should not be made so a woman can rest, read, work and plan in it. I have just read your second article on Odd House and I am glad to find this subject discussed in a health column. The home environment, it seems to me, is either neglected or treated timidly by most health experts.

"I am having my dining room converted into a library. I am having wheels put on my dining table. I meet with difficulty in getting large colored maps. It is a favorite indoor sport of mine following aviators around the world on the maps on my living room walls. My friends, at first dubious, are now scouting after handsome maps than mine. Not all of them. Some women hate my house because it is not like the Joneses."

"I had the footboards cut off all the beds. They were in the way. Only reason they put footboards on beds nowadays is because that's the way the Joneses have always liked 'em. I have discarded a small wagonload of alleged ornaments accumulated in 20 years of breathless pursuit of the Jones tradition—everything but a bit of tapestry from India, a thing that I treasure as a memento."

"But now I reach an impasse. I would like a swing settee before the wide windows looking out across a not unpleasant vista of lawn and shrubbery. But my 19-year-old daughter firmly vetoes this idea and thinks it would be too ridiculously out of place."

"Now please do not print anything about Odd House to shake the confidence of staid young folk like my daughter in your teachings and advice. I'd rather by far do without my silly swing than feel that my daughter no longer believes in the man on whose teachings she was reared."

End of letter.

After all, colored maps on a wall are not displeasing to look at, indeed they fascinate many of us. If a swing settee is appropriate for the patio or porch or lawn why not for the house? The correspondent's daughter is amusingly lavish to what "everybody" thinks or does. Fortunately for her, she has a modern mother. Success to her in her campaign. Why can't women strive for individuality in their home surroundings as they do in hats or gowns?

Round Table Discussions Feature P.-T. A. Institute Held in Athens

From left to right, the picture includes Mrs. W. S. Beckwith, president of the Athens Council of P.-T. A.; Mrs. R. A. Long, of Atlanta, first vice president of the Georgia Congress of P.-T. A.; and Mrs. W. I. Flanagan, of Athens, general chairman of the institute committee, who are attending the P.-T. A. institute in Athens this week.

ATHENS, Ga., July 22.—(AP)—Round-table discussions of mutual problem of the parent and teacher in modern school life drew the attention of the 18th annual institute of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers as it prepared to wind up its affairs.

Miss Lurine Collier, state home demonstration agent, told delegates that the "education of children in social behavior and in the development of character is the most important task of parents."

Speaking to the delegates at their assembly place at the University of Georgia, Miss Collier said that parents should create an atmosphere within the home that will promote harmony.

"Some of the traits that will contribute to such an atmosphere," she said, "are affection, consideration, openness, honesty, honesty, unselfishness, loyalty, tolerance and co-operation. Other contributions of a successful family are optimism, a broad viewpoint and courage in facing a changing world."

Miss Jessamine Ward Weds Mr. Collar at Church Ceremony

Centering widespread interest is the announcement made today by Dr. Thomas Crenshaw of the marriage of his niece, Miss Jessamine Crenshaw Ward, to William F. Collar Jr., of Atlanta and Austell, which took place yesterday morning at All Saints church. Bishop H. J. McKell officiated in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends of the bridal couple.

The church was simply decorated, with palms and ferns banking the altar and choir stalls. A basket of white gladioli centered the altar, and seven-branched candelabra holding burning white tapers accentuated the beauty of the setting.

Mrs. J. Glenn Dyer, of Salt Lake City, sister of the bride, acted as matron of honor, and Miss Grace Elizabeth Collar, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. They were gowned alike in white novelty chiffon, fashioned along graceful lines and featuring sashes of delphinium blue. They wore Juliet caps of delphinium blue and carried sprays of garden flowers, with blue delphinium as the principal floral note.

The bride was modestly attired in an ensemble of navy blue and white, her frock of navy blue complemented by a coat of white linen. Her accessories were in the same tones and she wore a shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

After the ceremony the couple left for their wedding trip. They will reside in Austell.

Mrs. Collar is the daughter of the late Mrs. Mary Crenshaw Ward and her maternal grandparents were the late Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Crenshaw Sr., Mrs. B. C. Ward is the bride's paternal grandmother. She is a niece of Dr. Thomas Crenshaw and Mrs. C. F. Roddey, and is the sister of Mrs. J. Glenn Dyer, of Salt Lake City, who is the former Miss Mary Seymour Ward, of Atlanta. She attended Washington Seminary and is a member of the O. B. K. Club.

Mr. Collar, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Collar, is a brother of Grace Elizabeth, Virginia, Carlton, Henry and John Collar. He is a grandson of Mrs. Hoyt Frazier. He attended Emory University, where he was a member of the Chi Phi fraternity.

large bed in "Stand-In" for Walter Wanger. Perhaps "relaxing" is the wrong word. About 20 people are gathered around him while he tries to read a paper mechanically. "Won't someone join me?" he pleads finally in desperation. But the sequence is over and Mowbray, who plays a composite of the foreign, pompous, ungrammatical Hollywood director, is ordered to another set-up—the dressing room of Maria Shelton, the star of the film within the film.

"Where's Leslie Howard?" demands Director Tay Garnett. No one knows. "He carries his own trap door so he can escape when work begins," grumbles Garnett. No sooner said than Leslie strolls on the set, his arm around the waist of Miss Shelton, an attractive brunette who is half Cherokee Indian. "I'm leaving for England when the picture is completed," he tells her languidly. His next film will be either "Lawrence of Arabia," or "Bonnie Prince Charlie." He prefers "Bonnie Prince Charlie"—because, "I have an invitation to stay at a wonderful place in Scotland—where I can rest a lot."

Charles Boyer is another Hollywoodite bound for his native country at the end of his current film, "Tonight's Our Night" (nee "Tonight's Our Night"). "And it's about time," he groans. "I've been away from France a whole year." Claude Colbert has dyed her brunette locks yellow for her role of Russian royalty. And she is disturbed about the publicized rumor she is wearing a wig. "Look," she exclaims indignantly, pointing to her dark parting. "It's my own hair growing like mad." Claude Colbert has another grouchy particular morning. "After seeing black and blue all over in 'I Met Him in Paris,' I decided to do 'Met Him in Paris' because it seemed a nice gentle drawing-room comedy. So they add several cute ideas like making me fall off a house!" (Do you still want to be a film star?)

Gunby—Yancey.

The marriage of Miss Alice Cornelia Gunby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gunby, of Thomson, Ga., and Frank Emerson Yancey was solemnized at high noon on July 4 at the Inman Park Methodist church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Luther Bridges.

The bride was attended by Miss Frances Hatcher, of Thomson, with whom she entered and Mr. Yancey had as his best man Bill Hodnett. The bride was radiantly lovely in an all-white ensemble with matching accessories. Her corsage was of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Hatcher was gowned in powder blue. Eden took her arm away from the younger girl. Vicky had ceased to tremble. Brad was lying, she knew. "It's their lives they're playing with, their futures," she thought. "They're hanging in a balance and Brad is too stubborn or too blind to realize it! Loving Dee, he'll watch her go and he won't take a move to stop her! And in years to come Vicky will know she was cheated, that she married a man who didn't love her! Then everything will come back to this minute!"

The truth, why did people evade it? Some win, others lose, she thought again. And sometimes, to spare some one hurt and humiliation, we live in a mental prison for a lifetime when the truth would have set us free. She saw the results of tonight in clear pictures: Dee, working in a miserable office, slowly paying off her debts, refusing the attentions of other men; Brad and Vicky unhappily married, the victims of tonight.

Dee said, "Let's go, Eden. It's getting late." She looked at Vicky. "Don't hate me. You're a lucky girl."

Eden drew her black coat together and picked up her gloves and purse from the table.

The next moment they were in the hall, walking toward the elevator.

"You were wrong," Dee said. "And I made a fool of myself. Why didn't we let them alone? I love him so, Eden. It hasn't anything to do with success or money. I'm sick of success and money."

The bulb over the elevator door flickered red. The door was noisily flung open and the operator said, "Going down." Eden put one small, high-heeled black slipper in and then turned abruptly.

"No! Let me out! We're going back, Dee!"

The door was open. Eden went in first. Brad had lighted a cigarette and Vicky had not left the fireplace. She seemed to be waiting for him to speak to her, to say something tender to her. Brad had switched on a white lamp over a red divan.

Not waiting for Brad to speak, Eden said, "I listened before and now you're going to listen to me! I know the three of you well, and I can't stand by and see you wreck your lives. Oh, why can't you see that this is one of the most important decisions you'll ever make?"

Brad, you sent Dee away just now. You saw her walk out of your life. You'll go through with marrying Vicky either because you think it's the decent thing to do or because you think you haven't hurt Dee enough, and that would be the cruelest thing you could do to her. It's for one of those two reasons. But you aren't doing the decent thing, and your reasoning isn't sound. It's mad and unfair and cruel to them and to yourself. You'll spend a lifetime in regrets."

Vicky cried: "He doesn't love her!"

Eden said, "Love doesn't die. Brad. It can be walked upon and kicked about, but if it's the real thing, it doesn't die. I know what"

it. I used to set all the dates. Now—now you set one. When are you going to marry me?"

He pulled off her green hat and rumbled her hair. "That's what we're going to talk about right now! And I'm doing the talking!" But his jaw sharpened suddenly and his eyes had pain in them. "Dee, let's laugh a lot to keep from bawling like babies. We—we almost missed the boat! If Eden hadn't..."

Tears were rolling unchecked down her cheeks but her eyes were shining. "Please give me your handkerchief—girls always cry when they're happy."

Rain splattered against the windows of the taxi. Eden felt the mist in her face.

Vicky stirred. "You know how I feel. When Neil..."

"Yes, I know. I was almost as if I were going through that all again." Smiling, she looked down at the slumped little figure. "Vicky, it isn't a good idea to marry the first boy who kisses you and flatters you and takes you out. It's like trying on the first dress you see without looking at any others. Sometimes it works out, but most of the time you feel cheated later."

"I'll always love Brad." "I won't tell you you won't because I don't know. Brad loves Dee. It's one of those sure, strong, unchanging things. You'll have so much before you. New York, new clothes, new people. You'll be popular and have a marvelous time. Take a few days off from school."

Vicky sat up and dried her eyes. "I'm not going back to school. I'm no good at shorthand and typing. My mind doesn't work fast enough. I've tried. I wanted to help mother. But I failed in most of the tests. I've been miserable about it and I couldn't keep my mind on the stuff with Brad."

"I'm going to New York to mother. I can see Brad and Dee married. I couldn't stand that!" "Of course," Eden said. "It was the best solution, after all. Kay was worried, was lonely for Vicky. Tomorrow," Vicky said. She began to brighten once. "I'll go tomorrow. I haven't much to pack and I'll send mother a telegram. And you'll come with me! You need a holiday. You need to get away."

"Don't tempt me," Eden said. But already she was tempted. Get away from scenes that remind you of Neil. Get away from David and try to think reasonably about him. Come back refreshed, knowing whether you will or will not marry David and try to love him. And try to put Neil out of your heart, try to erase the sweet memories...

"Please say you'll come, Eden." She patted Vicky's hand. "I'll see."

Vicky went straight to the bedroom and Eden went into the living room, where small, gray-haired Mrs. Carver was rocking contentedly. She kissed her and said, "Dee and Brad have made up. Mother. They'll be getting married soon. And Vicky is going to New York to her mother tomorrow. I'd like to go with her, if you don't mind."

"Dee and Brad have made up? Oh, that's fine! I knew they would. A lot of nonsense, their breaking off in the first place. And Vicky belongs with Kay." She smiled. "Of course, I don't mind your going. Do you go. You haven't looked so well lately..."

Their happy laughter mingled. "Go on," Dee said. "Boss me. I love you."

RED SQUIRRELS AT WORK.
Red squirrels or "chickarees" like mushrooms. They eat great numbers of them, and seem never to make a mistake between those which are poisonous and those which are not.

On the other hand, the red squirrel is bolder in some ways than the gray squirrel. Red squirrels have been known to invade a woods and drive away all the gray squirrels.

Here is an account of how red squirrels in Alaska gather cones of spruce trees:

"In the fall, before the snow became deep, spruce cones were gathered in great numbers. They were buried in the ground, placed in tree branches or piled on the ground."

"Piles of cones a foot or two high were made around the bottom of a tree containing a squirrel's nest. Near Tanana, the first cutting and piling of the cones was noticed on September 6, and the work was still in progress on October 13."

"The cones may be cut singly, but often they are cut in natural clusters of several cones. A red squirrel was watched while he was cutting cones from the top of a high white spruce. The cones were thrown away from the tree by a backward toss of the head."

Some persons do not like red squirrels, saying the animals rob birds' nests. The statement is true, at least for a great number of the squirrels.

On the other hand, red squirrels have performed a fine service. By burying cones, and forgetting some of them, they have caused trees to spring up. Many fine forests of pine, spruce and hemlock trees are believed to have been spread by the "planting" of the red squirrel.

GILLIAM AND COUCH SUGGEST PAY HIKES FOR CITY WORKERS

Increases Tentatively Presented by Committee Would Cost $30,000.

Salary increases and adjustments which it was estimated would cost $30,000 a year were tentatively presented yesterday by Alderman Ed A. Gilliam and Councilman J. Allen Couch, members of a special subcommittee studying the salary schedule of city workers.

With nearly 200 requests for adjustments or raises before them, Gilliam and Couch discussed pay increases which they estimated roughly would amount to $2,500 a month for approximately 100 employees.

Mayor Hartsfield, who was ill at home yesterday afternoon, did not attend the session, and City Comptroller B. Graham West, also a member of the subcommittee, was present only a part of the time. Couch and Gilliam called another meeting for this afternoon.

Even as the present salary scales were being discussed, opposition to increasing any city salaries at the present time developed among council members.

"I do not think now is the proper time to go into the salary scale and I am opposed to raises until we can see where we stand in relation to our budget," Councilman Cecil W. Hester asserted.

Hester and others pointed out that all city workers have been restored to basic pay and that employees in the higher brackets received a 10 per cent restoration in their checks distributed Wednesday.

"I know there are some adjustments which will have to be made because there are a number of gross inequalities in the salary schedule, but there should be no raises now," said Hester.

Gilliam declared it was the intention of the committee to "look into" the schedule but that the suggested raises and adjustments made yesterday were only tentative.

"These inconsistencies should be remedied and the city should pay a living wage to its workers," Gilliam asserted. "Costs of living are rising."

The finance committee chairman pointed out a number of employees working at similar jobs are paid different salaries, while others had their basic pay reduced before the general salary reductions were put in effect in 1932. "There were 47 instances of inconsistencies and about 150 requests for raises."

Couch and Gilliam said the salary of Assistant Police Chief A. J. Holcombe, second in command, should be raised to $265 per month because the pay of J. A. McKibben, new superintendent of detectives, was recently set at $260, which is $5 a month higher than Holcombe's present pay.

Both vetoed the request of Henry Kennedy, city treasurer, for his salary of $400 per year to be increased to $1,500 annually, which was the salary prior to 1933.

Department heads are to be called before the subcommittee at a later meeting for consultation regarding adjustments and raises, Gilliam announced. He said the subcommittee hoped to have a report ready for the finance committee which will meet the latter part of next week, prior to council's meeting August 1.

Tabulation of proposed adjustments and increases suggested by Gilliam and Couch will be considered by the committee today.

Harlow in 'Saratoga' At Loew's Grand Today

Behind the release of the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Saratoga," which starts today at Loew's Grand theater, with Jean Harlow and Clark Gable co-starring, lies one of the most unusual technical achievements ever attempted in a Hollywood studio.

When a flood of letters began pouring into the M-G-M studio, urging the release of the production, Director Jack Conway was faced with the problem of finishing the few uncompleted scenes without his feminine star. Solution lay in rewriting those sequences to eliminate as far as possible the character she played; re-editing scenes already filmed to conform with the new treatment; and the use of various technical devices. Fortunately, the ending of the picture with Miss Harlow and Gable had already been filmed. Miss Harlow was in all the scenes up to the next to last reel of the production. A double (Mary Dees, Miss Harlow's stand-in) was used in the few rewritten scenes, but her appearances were minimized. In these instances only "long shots" were made, the double appearing with her back to the camera. In no place is her face seen.

"Saratoga" is a race-track story written by Anita Loos (who adapted "Red-Headed Woman") and the screen for Miss Harlow and Robert Hopkins.

Two Comedy Favorites In Paramount Picture

Two comedy stars of immense popularity come to the Paramount theater today in "Ever Since Eve," the Cosmopolitan production. Marion Davies shares honors with Robert Montgomery. They are supported by such capable comedians as Frank McHugh, Patsy Kelly, Louise Fazenda, Allen Jenkins, Marcia Ralston and Carol Hughes.

"Ever Since Eve" has every element that goes toward making a tremendous Davies hit. It has a good story full of fun and romance; a big spectacle that includes songs and dances, and it gives the star several opportunities to display her rare blond beauty and her taste in gorgeous gowns.

Her role seems especially suited for Miss Davies and for light, gay romance, the picture is headed for one of the top spots in comedy this year.

Lloyd Bacon directed the comedy from a screen play by Lawrence Riley, based on an original by Margaret Lee and Gene Baker. The two song numbers in the picture were written by the team of Jack Scholl and M. K. Jerome.

Laugh-Filled Comedy Presented at Rialto

"Mama Steps Out," laugh-filled comedy which will occupy the feature spot on the Rialto screen starting today, includes in its cast two teams who provide ideal fun and romance combinations.

Guy Kibbee and Alice Brady are perfect as the middle-aged Americans in Europe, while Betty Furness and Stanley Morner, a new screen personality, turns out to be just as ideal in the romantic field as the older two are in comedy.

The picture, produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, was taken from the stage hit, "Ada Beats the Drum." It was directed by George B. Seitz with the musical score by Edward Ward, and the intriguing song numbers contributed by Chet Forrest and Bob Wright.

In addition to the clever four who head the cast, important roles are portrayed by Gene Lockhart, Edward Norris, Gregory Gaye, Ivan Lebedeff, Heather Thatcher and others.

It is the story of a successful businessman who takes his family to Europe. His wife, Ada, has visions of acquiring European "culture," while his daughter proceeds to fall in love with a crooner attached to the ship's orchestra, on the voyage over. The crooner does not return her affection.

'Easy Living' Preview At Fox Saturday Night

Jean Arthur in "Easy Living," delightful comedy, will be shown at the Fox theater as its preview at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow night. With clever short subjects, "Mama Steps Out," is exactly the type of entertainment for all who love a good laugh in the summer time.

Radio Reporter Story For Capitol Patrons

Lee Tracy, whose rapid-fire portrayals have won him a favored place in the roster of screen stars, takes the role of a radio reporter in "Behind the Headlines" coming to the Capitol theater for a week's engagement starting Sunday.

With a tiny transmitting set in his pocket, and a lapel microphone, he scoops his newspaper rivals by broadcasting news flashes direct from the scene of action. This innovation, now actually in use in radio work, is revealed for the first time on the screen in this high-speed offering, which builds from the start to a most exciting climax.

Diana Gibson has the feminine lead in this picture, with Paul Guilfoyle and other well-known players in the cast.

'The Road Back' at Fox Has Universal Appeal

A procession of emotions ranging in intensity from the vitriolic hate of a man whose love has been betrayed, to the tenderness of a mother's love; from the madness that drives men to murder to the great human friendships welded in an inferno of revolution, are the dramatic elements which James Whale, director, found in the story of "The Road Back" and developed for the screen. The picture opens at the Fox theater for a week's run.

"The Road Back" is taken from a book whose frank revelations of carefully guarded secrets shook the world. It is a tale no man dared to pen until Erich Remarque risked his life and liberty to write it. He was forced into exile because of the novel.

Director Whale saw universal appeal in the story. "Some pictures appeal more strongly to men than they do to women; some appeal to young persons only," he says. "The Road Back," I believe, is a picture that will appeal to all ages and to both sexes."

A cast of 40 principals and 2,000 extra players includes John King, Richard Cromwell, Slim Summerville, Andy Devine, Barbara Read, Louise Fazenda, Jean Rouverol, Maurice Murphy, Larry Blake, Henry Hunter, Noah Beery Jr., Gene Garrick, John Emery, Etienne Girardot, Robert Warwick, Lionel Atwill, Arthur Hohl, Spring Gyngton and Laura Hope Crews.

Pair Pardoned In One Robbery; Held in Another

The Governor's office yesterday announced pardons for two men convicted of robbery because of "mistaken identity." But the men, pardoned only in one case, must continue serving another sentence.

The men are B. H. O'Connell and L. H. Wilson, now serving a five-year sentence for robbery upon conviction in Bibb county in October, 1936, who were convicted in November, 1936, of robbery in Jackson county and sentenced to from eight to 12 years.

The Governor, in granting a pardon in the Jackson county case, said the step was recommended by the prosecutor, the members of the trial jury, and Solicitor General Charles Garrett, of Bibb county, on the grounds the men were "wrongfully convicted in Jackson on a case of mistaken identity."

The pardon, the Governor's office said, will have no effect on the sentence handed down in Bibb county.

CONSTITUTION TIPS BUREAU ON ESCAPE

FBI Men Hunt for U. S. Prisoner Vanishing in Terminal Station.

The federal prisoner who disappeared Wednesday at the Terminal station is now a fugitive the Federal Bureau of Investigation is hunting, result of a quick call from a Constitution reporter, it was learned yesterday.

The bureau yesterday notified Washington headquarters, and is searching for Charles R. Terwilliger, convicted postoffice robber who escaped federal guards who were transferring him to the Atlanta penitentiary from Roanoke, Virginia.

"He is our little red wagon now," R. L. Fagan, assistant agent in charge of the Atlanta division, FBI, said yesterday. "We were not notified of the escape until we got the call from The Constitution late Wednesday night."

United States Marshal John W. Stewart, of Roanoke, was walking seven convicts through the lobby of the Terminal station, when Terwilliger, who was not handcuffed, lost himself in the crowds. Marshal Stewart notified Atlanta police of the escape, and described the missing man as 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighing 160 pounds, and having a bald spot on his forehead. The prisoner, dressed in gray trousers and white shirt, wore no coat or hat, Stewart said.

With rare exceptions, Egyptian sculptors followed the rule of portraying all men and women healthy and youthful.

RICH'S BARGAIN BASEMENT

Browns Belt Yank Hurlers for 13-4 Win; Bees Blank Cards

HEMSLEY, WEST HIT HOME RUNS; WYATT WINS 1ST

Georgian Gives A's Four Hits in Debut; Tigers Trim Red Sox.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. A couple of "murderers" went to work on each other Thursday, and the Browns surprised by outclimbing the New York Yankees for a 13-4 victory, ending the Yanks' six-game winning streak.

A total of 28 hits of assorted shapes and sizes were clouted all over the lot, the Browns getting 13 and the Yanks 13. The Yankees wasted a lot of their's, particularly when both Joe DiMaggio and Lou Gehrig, the Nos. 1 and 2 executioners, failed with the bases loaded on different occasions.

West, Hemsley and Henrich were the big guns. West clouted a double and a single as well as his homer. Hemsley had a homer and two singles and Henrich piled up a total of four hits, including a homer.

Jack Knott staggered through eight innings for the Browns, and was replaced in the ninth by Julio Bonetti. Sunny Jim Bottomley, the Browns' new manager, was taking no chances with the Yankees, and despite an eight-run lead, yanked Knott for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

John Whitlow Wyatt, aided by Hal Trosky's 22nd and 23rd home runs of the season, hurled a four-hit, 5 to 1 triumph over the Philadelphia Athletics in his first start for the Cleveland Indians.

The silent Georgian limited the Mackmen to only one damaging blow—a sixth-inning home run by Wally Moses, the outfielder's third in as many games against the Tribe—and connected for singles in his two official trips to the plate.

Meanwhile Trosky's two powerful wallballs over the centerfield gate were joined by a home run by Earl Averill as Cleveland took the last three games of the four-game series. All four-baggers were with bases empty.

The Detroit Tigers took the series from Boston, two games to one, with a 19-hit assault on four pitchers for a 17-4 victory in the final game.

Southpaw Jake Wade limited the Red Sox to six hits but walked 10 men. Jimmie Fox, Boston first baseman, hit his fifth home run of the series and twenty-third of the season with Pinky Higgins on base in the sixth inning, after Wade had fanned Fox with the bases loaded in the fourth.

Hank Greenberg, of the Tigers, hit his twenty-second home run with Charlie Gehring on base in the first inning, and Gehring, Rudy York and Chet Laabs also made circuit smashes. The Tigers rolled up an 11-run lead in the first two innings.

LATE TRADE AND EARLY CURB GAINS

NEW YORK, July 22.—(AP)—Curb stocks eased off in late transactions today, cancelling a substantial part of gains registered earlier in the session.

NEW YORK, July 22.—(AP)—

Curb stocks eased off in late transactions today, cancelling a substantial part of gains registered earlier in the session.

Utilities, quiet at the opening, showed strength at midday, closed with assortment of plus and minus signs. Electric Bond & Share finished at 19 1/4, up 3/8; Niagara Hudson, 13 1/4, up 1/8; United Gas 5-8, up 1/8. Closing lower were American Gas & Electric at 36, off 1/4; and Standard Oil at 37, off 1/4.

Among industrials finishing on the upside were Berkey & Gay and Pan-American Airways. Aluminum Company of America, American Cyanamid "B," Pittsburgh Plate Glass, St. Regis Paper and United Wall Paper were lower.

Sales totaled 188,000 shares, against 229,000 yesterday.

In the added attractions which were a feature of the tournament, young Gene Dahlbender Jr., of Atlanta, who was runner-up in the first flight, won a prize for the best shot of the tournament.

On No. 5, Gene Jr. was in the ditch and in what looked to be an unplayable lie, but he blasted out of the water within three feet of the cup and dropped the putt for a birdie.

BEST ALIBI.
J. H. Bagwell, president of the Canton Golf Club, won a prize for the best alibi. And it was a good one and can be used by any player in not too close following a match.

Bagwell had beaten A. V. Jones, a fellow club member, many times, but in the semi-finals, Jones had beaten him, and he was forced to admit that he was not too close following a match.

Hon. C. Cobb, mayor of Canton, a great admirer of golf, but a victim of too many pars and birdies from his opponent in the tourney, presented the trophies late Thursday afternoon.

GREAT TOURNEY.
It was a great tournament and drew a surprisingly large entry of almost 50 players from all sections of north Georgia. And as the visitors drove away, it was the unanimous opinion that Canton will soon find its place in big-time golf in Georgia.

Semi-final results: Championship Flight—Tyre Jones Jr., Canton, 1-2; J. H. Bagwell, Canton, 3-4; Bill Little, Marietta, 5-6; Gene Dahlbender Jr., Atlanta, 7-8; A. V. Jones, Canton, 9-10; A. V. CLIENT ON STAND AT FRAUDS TRIAL*U. S. to Rest Soon in Kopal-Quinn Case.

Another customer witness, George W. Lewis, of Ocilla, testified yesterday for the government at the Kopal, Quinn & Company mail and securities fraud trial in federal court, as the hearing neared the close of its fourteenth week.

The prosecution was expected to close within a few days. Lewis was called after Judge E. Marvin Underwood of defense motion excluded from evidence books of McCormick & Company, a joint defendant, following a lengthy investigation of their condition.

The court had previously ruled that records of Kopal-Quinn and Gould & Company, with exception of the entries in 1935, and parts of the John J. Burke & Company and E. M. Burke & Company ledgers would be admitted to evidence.

C. D. Hardeman, of 490 Angier avenue, N. E., only member of the Atlanta police department to attend the Federal Bureau of Inves-

Hardeman is one of three Georgians, who will get diplomas Saturday among 36 students from over the nation. The other Georgians are James Lonnie Murphy, of the Valdosta police, and Wilbur Perkerson, of the LaGrange police.

Chief M. A. Hornsby, of the Atlanta police, selected Hardeman at the beginning of the session 12 weeks ago because he was a "good patrolman."

He was approved by the Atlanta division, FBI, which had contributed only three to the academy's enrollment, previous to this session. The National Academy has graduated 152 since it was begun in 1935.

EXCITING FINISH FEATURE AT GRIFFIN

Big Crowd Enjoys Classic
City's First Soap Box Race.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

GRIFFIN, Ga., July 21.—In the most stirring finish of any division finals, Chubby, barefooted Billy Barfield, 11-year-old schoolboy, streaked across the finish line less than three feet ahead of Fred Dutton to win the Griffin division finals of The Constitution-Chevrolet Motor Company soap box derby today.

Racing down the 350-yard Hill street course in 38 seconds flat, Billy, in his red and black No. 26 car, barely nosed out Dutton.

36 Cars Entered.

Thirty-six cars were entered and approximately 4,000 people crowded the track to see them fight it out for the right to race in the Northeast Georgia finals to be held in Atlanta Saturday. Barfield will meet the winner of the Atlanta division finals, who will be decided in the elimination races on Thursday and Friday; Hansford Hall, the winner of the Gainesville race, and Hamil Murray, winner of the Athens derby, for the championship of northeast Georgia.

The winner of this event will go to Akron, Ohio, to run in the grand national finals, which last year drew more than 80,000 spectators.

Officials of the Griffin race, which was co-sponsored by the Griffin Daily News and the Copeland Chevrolet Company, included Spright Dowell Jr., G. D. Buice, M. O. Gardner, J. W. Slade and C. B. Holder.

Quimby Melton, publisher of the More than 2,500 people saw Gainesville's most interesting event Saturday, July 17. A very fast race of Soap Boxers awarded them well for their time.

News, was the official starter of the races. He also awarded the prizes after the running.

Barfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Barfield, in addition to winning the right to race in Atlanta, also won the first prize—a bicycle, given by The Constitution. Second prize, a $25 watch, went to Dutton.

There was one minor accident on the track today. In the second heat of the Class B group, Dakin Ferris lost control of his car and plunged into a three-foot ditch on the side of the track. Dakin was not seriously hurt, having only a few cuts and bruises, but his car was almost completely demolished. He remained at the races to congratulate the winner.

Fast Times Made.

Billy, who promises to "do his best" in Atlanta, had previously won the Class B finals in 39 seconds, one slower than his winning time in the finals. Fred won the Class A finals in 39.6 seconds.

Jim Henderson won the prize for the best built car. Jim Freeman won the finals of the consolation race in Class B while Marvin Saul, in his black and white "Pirate" with a skull and cross-bones insignia painted across the radiator, won the Class A consolation.

The large list of prizes, donated by Griffin merchants, included flashlights, shoes, overalls, a radio, tennis rackets, baseball equipment, fountain pens, softballs, clothing, watches and groceries.

Little Barfield said after the race he was proud of his bicycle, and he wanted to thank The Constitution and Griffin sponsors for it. His car cost him $9.08 and he spent more than a month building it.

It's Derby time again—thrills in every heat—boys in all their glory. See them at the races tomorrow, 2 p. m., Northside drive at Haynes Manor.

Last Year's Hard Luck Racer

This is the streamlined racer with which Preston Mauldin hopes to get revenge. Last year he was cheated out of the Atlanta championship in the Soap Box Derby when an air tire blew out only 18 inches from the finish line. Preston lay unconscious on a bank near the finish line as Tommy Howard flashed by to fame and victory.

Eighteen feet from the finish line at last year's Atlanta Soap Box Derby, a car came to a halt. On the banks nearby was its driver—unconscious.

An air tire had blown out and the youthful driver lost control of his car—and the race.

This year he is back in the race again. He wants to win, but somehow that 18-foot gap between the front of his car and the finish line last year has taken some of the cockiness and sureness out of him.

"I Hope to Win."

"I hope to win," is the way he puts it now.

Last year it was "I'm going to win."

The boy is Preston Mauldin, of 1376 Graham street. He led the race all the way—except for the last few feet—last year. His was regarded as the fastest model in the derby.

This year Preston, now 13, has built another soap box racer. It is modeled after his fleet 1936 car, but this year there are no air tires. On the wheels is solid rubber. He is taking no chances of blowouts this time.

The Mauldin model is completely streamlined and covered with paper. The wheels are ball-bearing. It weighs 249 pounds, including Preston's 95.

"Self-Built."

It was built by Preston himself and was begun the night after last year's race. It's got to be a winner this year to make up for last year's heartbreaks.

But, still he's not so confident. Eighteen feet is might close to get to victory and see it fade away, he reasons.

ENGINEERS SOLVE STATIC PROBLEM

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—

(UP)—Engineers of San Francisco's two great bridges, across the Golden Gate and across San Francisco bay to Oakland, have been obliged to find means for diverting the static electricity that is developed by many automobiles when in motion.

The necessity for something being done to remedy the situation developed when it was found that often when a car stopped to pay toll, the accumulated electricity in the car would run down the driver's arm into the coin he was tendering the toll collector and give the latter something of a jump.

The situation was remedied by the installation of "cat's whiskers" of slender metal rods which contact the frames of incoming cars and ground the static electricity before the toll collector gets it via the 50-cent fare.

KENTUCKY WOMAN IS STUNT ASPIRANT

HAMILTON, Ont., July 23.—(UP)—Somewhere in Kentucky lives a woman with the ambition of going over Niagara Falls in a rubber ball.

The ambition was revealed in a letter received at the mayor's office here. The letter states:

"Dear Sir: I am writing you in regard to Niagara Falls. I want to go over the Falls in a rubber ball on the Canadian side some time during the warm weather. Please give this letter to someone that can give me some information on this. Please do not make this public, or my name. If I do this stunt, I can be known as the mystic woman until it is over."

A woman's name was affixed as the signature.

Rattlesnakes Shy, Desire Solitude; Will Strike Only in Self-Defense

LOS ANGELES, July 21.—(UP) Perhaps there's a rattlesnake in the grass!

But they're not as dangerous as they are supposed to be, said Spence D. Turner, chief forester of Los Angeles county.

"Rattlesnakes are timid. They are glad to be friends. All they ask is to be let alone," said the forester.

"Contrary to common belief, rattlesnakes seldom have been known to dart any more than a third of their length and they will not chase you.

Warns Before Striking.

"It is only when a rattler is come upon in some exposed place, where he can't make a quick getaway that he will strike in self-defense. He will sound a warning first," Turner said.

When asked what a person should do if bitten, the chief forester said:

"If you are attacked, get immediate treatment, but first be sure you have been bitten, for he may have missed, or his fangs may have penetrated only your clothing.

"One can tell if bitten if several drops of blood ooze from a small wound.

Avoid Fright.

"Try not to be frightened, for fear stimulates the blood action and hastens the spread of the poison."

Campers and hikers in the western part of the United States find many snakes come out of their winter's hibernation with the first warm days of spring, said the forester.

"It is the same with all snakes," he added, "when the temperature goes below 70 degrees a snake grows sluggish, at 50 it is nearly helpless and it will die in freezing weather.

Dislike Hot Weather.

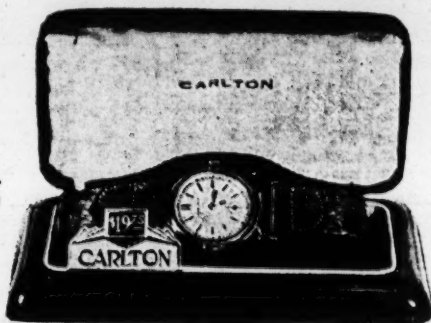

"However, snakes do not like excessively hot weather. When the mercury is above 90 degrees snakes will seek a damp, shaded area to rest."

NO TAX LEVIED IN VIRGINIA TOWNReceipts From Utilities Retire Costs of Government.

BEDFORD, Va., July 21.—(UP) This Virginia town of 4,000 population, which recently celebrated its 80th birthday, has established a wide-spread reputation as a city without taxes.

No Tax Paid.

Since early in 1935, citizens of Bedford have paid no local tax assessments whatever. Civic leaders attribute this to sustained good civic management.

Under its present budget, the municipally owned light and water plants pay the cost of government, and in addition permit regular contributions toward retirement of the city's bonds, an obligation that has been cut almost in half during the past seven years.

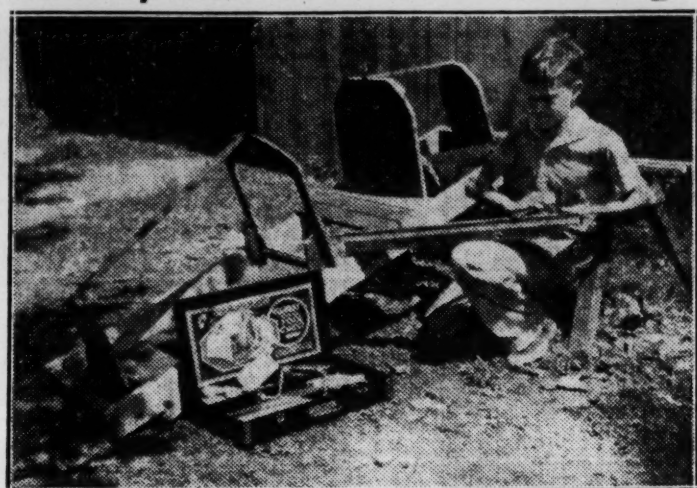

No Increase Noted.

Bedford's operating expenses have shown no increase during the past 10 years. The city is governed by a mayor and eight councilmen elected from among its citizens, most of whom are woolen mill or tin can factory workers. A city manager works directly under the mayor.

Despite the fact that its citizens pay no taxes, Bedford has modern schools, paving, excellent water and sewage systems, well-lighted streets and more than adequate fire protection.

Factory Owner Mayor.

Its present mayor is Jesse Ward Gillaspie, who was born in Bedford county and 36 years ago established the first canning factory in Virginia. A successful private business career and the loss of an arm when he was only 11 years old have not dulled his active interest in civic affairs.

Athens Boy Won Derby Race On His Fourteenth Birthday

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

ATHENS, Ga., July 22.—It was Hamil Murray's birthday. News photographers, radio men, reporters, and high officials crowded around him. He had just won the Athens division finals of The Constitution-Chevrolet Motor Company Soap Box Derby. It was all new to him.

Two hours before, nobody knew Hamil Murray. He was just one of the entrants of the derby who didn't have a chance, because he was from Danielsville, Ga., and couldn't expect to win anything with the car he had built with his dad's hammer and saw.

Building that car was not easy for Hamil Murray. He had misfortunes that would discourage the average youngster. On his first trip in the car he cracked some of his wheels when he lost control and hit the curb. That meant more expense for new wheels.

Hamil Murray was not rolling in money. But he got some new wheels and put them on the car. The whole thing cost him $9.65. It would have been less but he had another accident on his next time out. That meant more nails to buy—more money. But he rebuilt his car, because he had confidence in his work.

Even just before the races, nobody still paid any attention to Hamil Murray. His car was not as pretty as some of the others and no one looked twice at it. But Hamil Murray didn't care. He still had confidence in it.

But people took notice when Hamil Murray's car sped down the 350-yard track in 37.5 seconds to win his quarter-final heat by six or seventh lengths. It was the fastest time recorded and people began to say, "There's the winner. I knew it all the time."

When Hamil Murray won the race, he was bewildered but not surprised. He had confidence in his car. He knew he would win—or come close.

AFRICA'S RACE WON CHRISTMAS

More Than 60,000 People
See Race at Port Elizabeth.

The first of the 1937 Soap Box Derby champions has been crowned at Port Elizabeth, South Africa, in the third annual South Africa derby held under the auspices of the Chevrolet Motor division of General Motors Sales Corporation.

The new champion is Danie Wege, 15-year-old schoolboy from Kroonstad, Orange Free State, who won out over 18 other district champions selected from all over South Africa. Danie's victory was hard earned. Last year and again the year before he took second place in the South African finals.

Toward the end of July, Danie will sail for the United States to take part in the international Soap Box Derby finals to be held in Akron, Ohio, August 15, the same day as the All-American finals. There, he will compete with champions from Mexico, Canada and Hawaii as well as the champion of the All-American race in 120 American cities.

More than 63,000 persons witnessed the running of the finals at Port Elizabeth in January it was reported. The races were broadcast throughout the country, and a public address system kept the crowd informed of their progress in detail.

Entries already have been received from 120 cities throughout the United States for the All-American Derby. Chevrolet will co-operate with the leading newspapers in these cities in sponsoring the derby. Upwards of 150,000 spectators are expected to be on hand in Akron for the running of the finals.

This year's derby is the fourth to be run under the auspices of Chevrolet. Its spectacular success and spontaneous acceptance by youngsters and adults alike has caused it to become known during those four years as "the greatest amateur racing event in the world." Preparations are already under way for improving the concrete track at "Derby Downs" in Akron and for enlarging the accommodations for spectators.

ers, radio men and officials had got through with Hamil Murray, he was still the same Hamil Murray that no one had known two hours before. Quiet, and with no outward show of the happy emotions that must have been surging through his body, this country boy sat back and enjoyed it.

He knew all the time he had a chance—this was his birthday, he had all of his trouble before the race, and he had confidence in his work. Hamil Murray still has confidence in his car—and he will prove that confidence in Atlanta on July 24. He's just the boy who don't have a chance. He didn't have one in Athens, either.

FLAG DISPOSITION NOW CEREMONIOUS

New Ritual, First of Kind, Employed in Burning of Worn Banners.

URBANA, Ohio, July 20.—(UP) In an impressive ritual—believed to be the first of its kind—60 American flags "worn out in service" were destroyed here by members of H. M. Pearce post, American Legion.

Neither the army, navy, nor the American Legion heretofore has used a ceremony on such occasions, Lieutenant Colonel William Vance, army reserve corps, who drafted the one here, said.

Interest Expressed.
Vance said army and navy officials had expressed interest in the flag-destroying ritual and that national American Legion officials had indicated it will be adopted by the Legion.

The ritual prescribes an outdoor service with officers and members, or enlisted men, assigned to definite stations around an open fire. The ceremony opens with the sergeant-at-arms presenting to the commander all flags to be destroyed with these words: "I wish to present a number of

After their condition has been noted the commander declares:

"They have reached their present state through a service of tribute and memory and love."

Service Well Rendered.
"A flag may be a flimsy bit of printed gauze, or a beautiful banner of finest silk. Its intrinsic value may be trifling or great. Its real value is beyond price, for it is a symbol of all that we and our comrades have worked for, and died for—a free nation of free men, true to the ideals and practices of liberty, freedom and justice."

Dipped in Kerosene.
The flags are then ordered dipped in kerosene and placed on a rack over a fire. As this is being done the bugler sounds "To the Colors" and the entire company stands at attention. The chaplain says a prayer.

Soap Box Derby Idea Was Born by Accident

Newspaper Photographer
Originates Idea in Dayton, Ohio.

Birth of the soap box derbies was an accident.

A newspaper photographer, covering another assignment, "got the idea" when he saw four boys riding down a hill in their homemade cars.

The photographer was Myron E. Scott, of Dayton, Ohio.

So intrigued was he by the racing miniature cars, that he stopped his taxi and took a few pictures of the boys and their "mounts."

Possibilities Apparent.

When he developed the pictures, he saw the possibilities of a soap box derby race. Grabbing his photographs, he all but ran to his managing editor and succeeded in selling him on the idea of the paper sponsoring the soap box derby race and throwing it open to all the boys in the city.

The idea took and the race was held.

As luck would have it, Don C. Kettering, chief engineer of the General Motors Corporation, happened to be visiting in Dayton, his home town, when the first race was held. That was in 1933. He, too, was sold on the idea.

The executive saw great advertising advantage to his company if some unit organization would take over the sponsorship of Soap Box Derbies on a national scale. He talked it over with other officials.

Chevrolet Sponsor.

Sometime later, Scott was invited to come to Detroit to help devise some means of sponsoring soap box derbies throughout the nation. Chevrolet took over the sponsorship.

In 1934, 34 cities held derbies; in 1935, 56 cities; last year derbies were held in 116 cities in the United States and in three foreign countries.

This year 120 cities, the limit the Chevrolet company will permit, and eight foreign countries are sponsoring the derbies.

This limit applies only to key cities and newspapers such as Atlanta and The Constitution and does not apply to cities such as Athens, Gainesville and Griffin, where preliminaries are held.

The Chevrolet Company spends approximately $250,000 annually conducting these derbies for the youth of the land. Scott is now one of the directors of the All-American derby, which is held each year in Akron, Ohio.

SMITHY SHOWS GAIN IN COBBLING WORK

JEFFERSON, Ohio, July 23.—(UP)—A symbol of an age commonly thought long gone still stands and prospers in this town. It is the village smithy.

Albert Bailey has been in business 46 years. Never in all those years has his bellows missed a puff.

There was a time, Bailey said, when it seemed that horses had become extinct animals, seen only in museums. But today Bailey joyfully reports an increase of 25 per cent in his horse-cobbling business, over the 1936 trade.

The upshoot is due to the fact that horses are coming back to the farm scene.

Bailey learned his trade from his father, who beat the anvil here for 35 years. His grandfather also was a blacksmith.

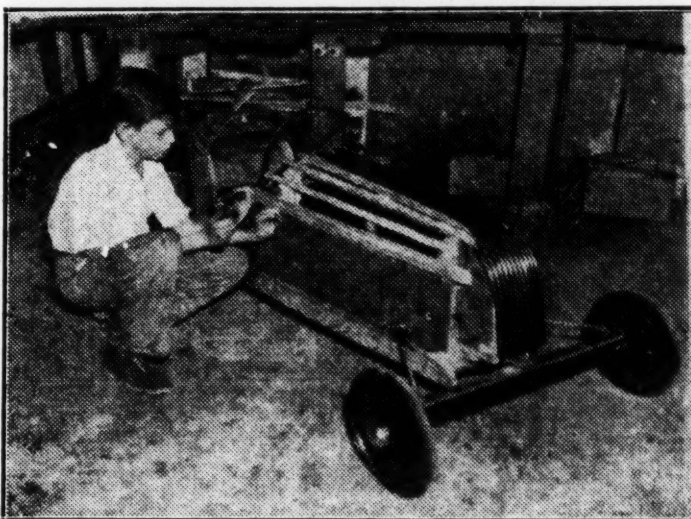

Jefferson was for many years known as the "Little Kentucky" of Ohio. Hundreds of work-horses were sired here, as well as light-harness stock.

FLYING FISH.

No "fish story" was Bob Judd's tale of how he captured an 18-inch, three-pound black bass without hook or line. Three friends vouched for his story that the fish "just jumped" into his boat while he was rowing on the Fox river, near Aurora, Ill.

It's Derby time again—thrills in every heat—boys in all their glory. See them at the races tomorrow, 2 p. m., Northside drive at Haynes Manor.

Gainesville's Champ Airplane Work Helps in Building Soap Box Racer

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Hansford Small, the winner of the Gainesville division finals of The Constitution-Chevrolet Motor Company Soap Box Derby, is a model airplane enthusiast. His winning auto closely resembled a model airplane—only it flew on the ground.

The car was covered with the same material with which airplanes are covered and airplane dope stretched the covering tighter over the frame, giving it a stream-lined effect. Hansford painted his car white and trimmed it in a light blue, making it the prettiest car in the Gainesville race.

Hansford attributes much of his success to the experience he obtained while building model airplanes. "In building model planes, balance is the keynote," he said to us. "I figured that if I could balance my car I would have a pretty good chance of winning. Then, too, it was a lot easier to cover it after I knew something about it from covering my models."

When informed of her son's victory, Mrs. R. M. Small said, "Oh, goodness, that means a trip to Atlanta." Mr. Small was equally as proud of his son's victory, saying, "The boy worked hard on the car and I had a feeling that he would come through."

The favorite of the crowd at Gainesville was the smallest boy in the race, Guy Stancil Jr., who in his little racer ran the wheels off the other cars to win two heats and the finals of the Class B division.

He lost out in the finals, however, after he had a poor start. Before the final race to determine the Atlanta representative, Guy was confident. Someone told him he would have to go some to beat car No. 66, which was Hansford Small's racer. To which he replied, "I'm not scared, I'll beat him."

He didn't do that but he ran one of the best races of the day and walked off with more first places than anyone else.

Under the cockpit of his speeder was written the words, "Wild Junior Stancil—driver." He said that he got the name from one of the most prominent dirt track drivers in the south, Wild Bill Moore, of Gainesville.

Atlanta race fans will remember the vivid action pictures of this boy in The Constitution when he cracked up at Lakewood park two Sundays ago. He has long been noted for his daring racing at Lakewood.

Incidentally, the car that was cracked up by Moore was owned by Guy's father, Guy Stancil Sr., of Gainesville.

PRIZE EGGS SURVIVE

SOAP, WATER BATH

MILWAUKEE, July 21.—(UP) Even the dainty egg of a ruby-throated humming bird came unimpaired through a soap and water bath to which 3,328 eggs were subjected at the Milwaukee museum.

Marvin H. Adams, assistant curator of birds and mammals, applied a soft brush to the collection to prepare it for new show cases after it had been withdrawn from exhibition for a time.

All of the eggs excepting one are from North American birds. There are 795 sets from 720 species and subspecies, and 84 nests. Derivation of the collection ranges from the extinct passenger pigeon to the albatross and the California condor.

They were gathered, often at risk of life, by the late Benjamin Goss, a native of Pewaukee, Wis. Before his death in 1893 he had eggs of all the North American birds known to his contemporary ornithologists.
